Maloney Says Threats Made In Fight Over Neutrality Bill

Thinks He and Some Colleagues in Danger of Violence

SUPPORTS PLAN

Walsh Asserts Munitions Sale May Bring War to U. S.

Washington—(P)—Senator Maloney (D-Conn.) reported today that he and some of his colleagues involved in the fight over neutrality legislation had received "physical threats."

The assertion was made in a speech prepared by the stocky, bespectacled New Englander to announce his support of the administration's neutrality proposals, including repeal of the arms embargo.

"Like other members of congress," Maloney said, "I have undergone harsh criticism and have suffered political and physical threats."

He did not go into detail as to the nature and sources of the threats or against whom, other than himself, they had been directed, but at a subsequent point in the prepared speech he added:

"I know that the people who feel so intensely on this bill may one day put into effect the threats they have made, but to act otherwise than in accordance with one's judgment and conscience would be as a man washing his hands in the face of the possible threat of Christianity's crucifixion."

Walsh Fights Bill Senator Walsh (D-Mass.) Maloney's predecessor in debate and an opponent of repealing the arms embargo, told the senate that the sale of munitions and war equipment by this country might bring the European war "right to our front door."

He visualized submarines and warplanes of belligerent nations lurking off shore to attack ships laden with munitions consigned to the other side.

As the twelfth day of debate opened, Senator Austin of Vermont, assistant Republican leader of the senate, who is supporting the administration's bill, proposed that all neutrality legislation expire "when this present war is over."

He offered an amendment to accomplish that.

Walsh, chairman of the naval affairs committee, urged that the United States efforts be directed toward building up armed strength and preserving strict neutrality.

Urges Strong Defenses "Instead of spending time and energy adopting legislation which will mark us as unneutral and partisan before the world, destroy our moral influence as neutrals, and ultimately surely involve us," he declared, "we should be giving our attention to building up a strong impregnable defense, an army, navy and air force greater than any in the world, a system of national defense embodying an enlarged army and navy, adequate coastal fortifications, anti-aircraft that will compel respect from all nations and insure complete protection against any eventually which develops out."

Search in Vain for Trace of Stricken Ship

Kristiansund, Norway—(P)—A Norwegian coast guard ship dispatched to investigate a fire and explosion at sea reported early today it found no sign of a stricken ship or survivors.

Inhabitants of the southern Norwegian coast waited for daylight perhaps to disclose the reason for a series of blasts and a fire which burned from 10 o'clock last night (3 p. m. Monday, C.S.T.) until after 1 a. m. today, about four miles off Hellesoy light.

Coastal observers at Augland said the series of explosions and the fire indicated that a tanker might have been stricken. The playing of searchlights by a vessel beyond the fire appeared to some to have come from a warship, but others said it might have been from a passenger liner previously seen in the area.

Tenants Return To Warm Jail

The Sequoyah County jail in Oklahoma is warm again, so Sheriff Charley Hutchens invited 14 former inhabitants to return to complete misdemeanor sentences. All 14 complied. Judge Verner had ordered the prisoners released last week after electricity, gas and water were cut off because of unpaid bills. County Commissioners paid up in a hurry. This Post-Crescent Rental Ad quickly filled a vacancy with tenants... but tenants of quite a different sort than the above:

Rented house after second appearance of ad. Scheduled ad for 8 times and cancelled after second insertion.

Strong Opposition To Proposed Pact With Argentina

Midwesterners Against Tariff Concessions on Farm Products

Washington—(P)—Additional congressional opposition to the granting of tariff concessions on agricultural products from Argentina was voiced today at a hearing on a proposed trade treaty between the United States and the South American republic.

Representative Crawford (R-Mich.) assailed the administration's trade agreement policy as a "blind flying method of horse-trading."

Representative Hull (P-Wis.) denounced the proposed trade treaty as "a steady, cowardly policy of selling out our own farmers to benefit those of other lands."

He said congress "should and eventually will repeal the law which permits this assault upon the just rights of our own agriculture."

Hull said that reducing the tariff on dairy products while the government was spending $50,000,000 to reduce surpluses by furnishing them free to people on relief rolls "makes for a contradictory governmental policy which borders upon absurdity."

Representative Gilchrist (R-Iowa) urged the committee not to recommend concessions on corned beef, hogs, cattle, eggs, turkeys and related farm products.

Representative Johnson (R-Iowa) told the committee that the welfare of the American people and farmers must be kept ahead of that of people across the sea.

Picket Lines at Plant in Kenosha

Truck Turned Back: Police Called to Quiet Disturbance

Kenosha, Wis.—(P)—Picket lines today were thrown around the Nash Motors plant of the Nash-Kelvinator Corporation, where a strike was called Sept. 30.

Speakers for the United Automobile Workers (CIO) union described today's action as the start of regular picketing.

Striking employees yesterday turned back a truck which attempted to carry a load of service parts out of the plant.

Police were called to quiet the disturbance after automobiles were lined up in front of the plant gate to block the truck.

Company officials announced that a deadlock had been reached in negotiations, but that the company would be "willing to continue where the employees are ready to make progress on the points at issue."

The points were listed as paid vacations, the company's right to hire and fire, and a company demand for an agreement not to coerce or intimidate employees.

6 More are Indicted By Federal Grand Jury

Monroe, La.—(P)—Lorris M. Wimberly, speaker of the Louisiana House of Representatives, and five other persons were indicted today by a federal grand jury on seven charges of using the mails to defraud in the purchase of road machinery.

The indictment was announced by O. John Rogge, assistant United States attorney general, at New Orleans.

Former Governor Richard W. Leche and his one-time commissioner of conservation, William G. Rankin, also were named today in federal indictments returned at New Orleans.

Speed Up Help For Refugees, Roosevelt Plea

Declares Problem May Be Much Greater When War Ends

Must Provide Care and Areas for Homes, He Tells Group

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt urged officers of the inter-governmental committee on political refugees today to speed the task of helping 300,000 made homeless before the European war began in order to be prepared to cope with new problems when the current conflict ends.

He called for "redoubled vigor" because of the possibility of a refugee problem of "infinitely greater magnitude."

Speaking at a luncheon for the officers, representing six countries, Mr. Roosevelt asserted that "when this ghastly war ends there may be not one million but ten million or twenty million" persons who will enter into the problem of human refugees.

The first task of the inter-governmental committee, the president asserted, is to take care of refugees who must find new homes in other countries as a result of dislocations before the current war began.

Must Find Homes The president requested that, as the second great task before the committee, "it start at this time a serious and probably a fairly expensive effort to survey and study definitely and scientifically this geographical and economic problem of resettling several million people in new areas of the earth's surface."

There are many vacant spaces where European settlers could live permanently, the president asserted. Such areas, he said, cover many portions of the African, American and Australasian portions of the globe, millions of square miles located in relatively young republics and in colonial possessions or dominions of older nations.

Ruling Today on Stephenson Plea

Judge to Decide Whether Former Klan Chief Gets New Trial

48-leave-old D. C. Stephenson, Ku Klux Klan grand dragon and political power in post-war Indiana, reached today another milestone in his 14-year-old fight for freedom from a life sentence for murder.

Judge Cassius M. Gentry was ready to rule in Hamilton circuit court at 3 o'clock this afternoon on his demand for a new trial.

The fallen Klan head is serving life in Michigan City state prison on a murder conviction in the poison-death of Madge Oberholtzer, 29, statehouse office worker.

His lawyers contended the second-degree murder verdict in 1925 was illegal because the indictment charged first-degree murder.

The demand for Stephenson's release was a surprise move in the chief's eleventh major legal battle for freedom.

Should it fail, he has another card to play in his petition for a writ of error coram nobis, contending his trial was unfair because threats against his life kept him from testifying.

A court ruling upholding this plea also would lead to a new trial. Hearing of the pleas began Oct. 5.

Stephenson, here since Sept. 25, was stricken with a gall bladder ailment in his jail cell a week ago yesterday. He was reported recovering last night.

Salesman Accused of Attempted Extortion

Milwaukee—(P)—Walter F. Blohm, 41, an insurance salesman, was charged today with attempting to extort $2,000 from Frank Dordla, 61, a restaurant proprietor who lives near Oconomowoc.

Assistant District Attorney Edward Yockey said Dordla charged that Blohm demanded the money after asserting he "had something on" the restaurantier. Blohm was a captain in the German army during the World War.

International Labor Defense Never Communist Organization, Marcantonio Tells Dies Group

Washington—(P)—Representative Marcantonio (A-L-N-Y.) told the Dies committee today that he took the office of chairman of the International Labor Defense in 1937 "with the distinct understanding that this was going to be a non-communist organization" and that the policy had been maintained.

Regarding the witness table with his list, he assured the committee emphatically that communists exercised no control over the I. L. D. and that the organization would defend a victim of communist persecution as readily as it would a victim of fascism, if such a case should arise.

Marcantonio, appearing at his own request, made that statement when Chairman Dies (R-Texas) confronted him with a record of the I. L. D. in denouncing nazism and fascism but remarked that "never in the office."

British Training Vessel Damaged as 4 German Planes Raid Scapa Flow

Berlin Says French Troops Quit German Territory

HAILS AIR ATTACKS

Claims Five Allied Planes Shot Down on Western Front

Berlin—(P)—The German supreme command announced today that French troops had retired from the main part of the German territory they have been occupying outside the Siegfried line since the first weeks of the war.

"In the course of the day yesterday," a communique said, "French troops evacuated the greatest part of German territory they hitherto had occupied in front of our fortifications and retreated to and across the border."

Commenting upon the German air raid on the British naval base in the Firth of Forth yesterday, the communique added that "English naval forces were successfully attacked again" and that two warships had "sustained bomb hits of the heaviest caliber."

"This success was obtained despite the heaviest defense of the enemy by anti-aircraft fire and pursuit planes," the communique declared.

Raid at Scapa Flow

At the same time the supreme command said a German submarine commander had disclosed that the sinking of the British battleship Royal Oak and the reported torpedoing of the battle cruiser Repulse occurred in Scapa Flow bay, off the north coast of Scotland.

It was there that the crews of German warships scuttled their vessels during the World war after their surrender to the British fleet—opening the sea cocks while under the guard of British men of war.

(The British admiral has acknowledged the sinking of the Royal Oak, but has denied any damage to the Repulse.)

The communique also said that warfare on mercantile shipping in the North sea and Baltic "yielded effective results" last week. It quoted English sources as saying that between Oct. 13 and 15 seven steamers totaling 54,300 tons had been sunk in the Atlantic.

24 Measures Still Awaiting Decision Of Chief Executive

Madison—(P)—Governor Heil will have until Friday to act up on 24 bills sent to him in the closing days of the legislature which adjourned Oct. 6.

The bills reached his desk from the senate and assembly clerks' offices last Friday. Under the law any measure not signed within the following six days, Sunday excluded, die by pocket veto.

Among outstanding bills awaiting action is that creating an inter-legislative committee to draw up a general tax bill for presentation to the anticipated special session. The committee would have $2,000 for expenses.

Others are the $5,000,000 relief appropriation bill, the code bill for barbers, beauticians, shoe repairers and cleaners, and an omnibus appropriation to measure rectoring lapsed balances to the general fund and making $1,075,000 more available for aid to dependent children.

Also before the governor are bills requiring a $1 license of hook and line fishermen over 10 who use more than one pole, correcting an error in the cigarette tax law to require licenses of wholesale dealers only and allowing about $4,750 in compensation to non-civil service assembly employees.

Enters Not Guilty Plea To Charge of Assault

Green Bay—(P)—Clarence J. Johnson, 31, pleaded innocent in municipal court late yesterday to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill his brother-in-law, Edward Dolan, 38.

Johnson was released on $500 bond for a hearing Oct. 20.

He is accused of shooting Dolan when the latter attempted to visit his estranged wife, Florence Johnson's sister—at Johnson's home at 4 a. m. Saturday. Dolan is in St. Vincent hospital with a wound in his left thigh.

Johnson claimed that he shot in self-defense, declaring that he fired a shot from a target pistol into the floor in an attempt to scare Dolan, and that then Dolan attacked him and he shot again.

Would Bar Divorced Actors From Theaters

Lynn, Mass.—(P)—Motion picture theaters here have been requested to discontinue showing pictures in which actors or actresses who have been divorced are featured. The request was made by 500 members of the Lynn chapter of the Women of the Moose.

French Declare Germans Advance In Saar District

New Attack Is Reported Launched Along 20-Mile Front

Paris—(P)—German forces, having gained a foothold on French soil, were reported to have launched a fresh assault today which caused the French to fall back in the region east of the Saar river.

The new attack, a general staff communique said, developed along a 20-mile front east of the sector in which the Germans had reached positions 100 yards inside the French border north of Apsch—near the Luxembourg frontier.

The double offensive, military observers believed, indicated the nazis had definitely taken the offensive in a campaign to drive the French from German territory occupied during the first weeks of the war.

The French communique said the attack in the Saar sector was accompanied by "strong" German artillery fire.

No Deep Advance While French outposts were driven in, the communique declared, the German advance was halted "on the line foreseen." This was taken to indicate that assaults had not penetrated deeply into the French lines.

In anticipation of the German thrusts, the communique added the French command had decided more than 15 days ago to order back to new positions divisions which earlier had advanced into German territory.

This movement, it was said, terminated Oct. 2.

"Since then," the communique said, "we have left in contact only light elements of observation and some fractions of support."

Near the Luxembourg border, after penetrating to the French village of Apsch yesterday, nazis infantry and tanks were reported clinging to hard won positions on the heights of Schneeburg.

2 Thanksgiving Days for State

Martin Says Dates Set by Roosevelt and Heil Both Legal

Madison—(P)—Wisconsin will have two legal Thanksgiving holidays this year, one on Nov. 23 and another on Nov. 30 under an official ruling by Attorney General John E. Martin today.

The ruling assumed President Roosevelt would carry out his intention to advance the national holiday one week and proclaim it on Nov. 23.

Governor Heil already has issued a proclamation fixing the traditional last Thursday of the month—Nov. 30—as Thanksgiving day for Wisconsin.

Martin's opinion was requested by Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman to clear up a controversy as to whether state employees would have two days off. Under Martin's ruling they would but the effect in other political sub-divisions of the state, it was said, depended on local action.

The attorney general said two interpretations of state law governing legal holidays had been suggested—one contemplating that Thanksgiving day be designated by the governor or the president and the second allowing both to name the date. Martin said:

"We are of the opinion that the latter construction is correct and that when and if the president of the United States proclaims the 23rd of November as a day of public Thanksgiving there will be two Thanksgiving holidays in the state of Wisconsin for this year."

Farm Leaders Believe Agriculture May be Harmed Through War

Chicago—(P)—A warning to mid-western farmers that the war situation might leave them worse off financially than they were at its start was sounded today by 14 leaders of farm organizations from Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

The American farmer has little likelihood of making any money out of the European war, the group agreed, because even if farm prices should increase in later phases of the struggle, an advance in prices of industrial products the farmer needs is likely to more than offset the farm gains.

Therefore, if the farmer "doesn't watch his step, he may come out of the present war situation worse off than when he went in," the group said.

The consensus of the group was that middle western farmers should "sit tight," plan normal crops, farm efficiently, market in an orderly way—and devote stout profits, as may accrue toward getting out of debt and staying out.

Five Convicted in Federal Court as Strike Aftermath

Jury Acquits One and Judge Directs Acquittal For Two Others

Minneapolis—(P)—A federal district court jury today convicted five of the first eight men to be tried as an outgrowth of disorders during the WPA strike last July.

The jury acquitted one and the court directed verdicts of innocent for two others.

The eight were among more than 150 indicted on charges of conspiracy by interfering with those who wished to work during the strike.

During a week of riotous demonstrations against new wage and hour provisions of the relief act, a striker was shot to death, a policeman died from heart disease after doing riot duty, and more than a score were injured. Most of the casualties occurred July 14 during a fight at the scene of a sewing project.

The first eight to be tried were indicted in connection with a disturbance at a WPA project on the University of Minnesota campus, during which several suffered slight stab wounds.

The five convicted were Earl Pemble, Myron Phillips, Richard Connell, Ben Palmer, and Leslie Wachter. Directed verdicts of innocence were ordered for John Marshall and Gordon T. Smith. The jurors acquitted Arnold Mullen.

The court deferred sentence indefinitely, giving the defense until Nov. 4 to file motions.

A second trial, involving four defendants, began today.

Warren K. Billings Gets Freedom After 23 Years in Prison

San Francisco—(P)—Governor Culbert L. Olson returns to Sacramento today to put the official seal on a release order expected to make Warren K. Billings a free man early this afternoon, after 23 years incarceration.

Billings, with Tom Mooney, was convicted of murder for the San Francisco Preparedness day bombing in 1916. Ten were killed and 40 injured that day on Market street.

The governor commuted Billings' life sentence to time served yesterday, upon recommendation by a majority vote of the state supreme court, which previously had acted adversely on both Mooney's and Billings' cases. The governor asked for a pardon recommendation, but a letter from Chief Justice William H. Waste said a majority of members would recommend commutation only.

Olson could not pardon Billings outright, as he did Mooney, because a prior conviction, for transporting dynamite, stood against Billings on the books. But because Billings was not prosecuted as a repeated offender, the governor said legal advisers had told him he might still pardon the man even without supreme court recommendation.

Identify Body of Man Recovered From River

Baraboo—(P)—District Attorney John H. Rouse said today a body found in the Wisconsin river near Sauk City Sept. 9 had been identified tentatively as that of Frank Timlin, of Oshkosh, who disappeared Sept. 2.

London Says U-Boat Sank Royal Oak In Same Harbor

NAZI CASUALTY

Second Raid in Two Days On British Naval Centers

London—(P)—The British admiral disclosed tonight that the second German air attack of the day was carried out over the Orkney islands, location of the Scapa Flow naval base, shortly after noon today.

Two formations of nazis raiders, six planes in one and four in the other, made the second attack, which followed an earlier raid in which the training ship Iron Duke was damaged in Scapa Flow bay.

One German raider was reported by the admiral to have been destroyed. No damage was done by the attackers, said the admiral's communique.

London—(P)—German bombers damaged the British naval training ship Iron Duke in a raid at Scapa Flow today, the government announced, also disclosing that the battleship Royal Oak was sunk in the same harbor by a German submarine last Saturday.

Lord Chatfield, minister for defense coordination, told the house of lords that about four enemy planes participated in the raid today at Scapa Flow, Orkney island naval base where German crews scuttled the German fleet after the World war.

Two bombs fell near the Iron Duke, an old battleship which had been converted into a training vessel, Lord Chatfield said. She was damaged, but there were no casualties.

Prime Minister Chamberlain made a statement in the house of commons identical with Lord Chatfield's, and Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, also told of developing warfare at sea.

4 Planes in Raid Today's raid, the government spokesman said, occurred at 10:30 a. m. (3:30 a. m., C.S.T.) with four German planes, taking part. One German plane was shot down in flames and another probably

Foreign Minister Of Turkey Leaves Moscow Tonight

Long Negotiations With Russia are Brought To Halt

Moscow.—The protracted negotiations between Soviet Russia and Turkey came to a temporary halt today with the announced intention of Turkey's Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu to leave Moscow tonight.

Saracoglu has been in Moscow nearly a month discussing with Soviet leaders problems in connection with the Black Sea and its outlet, the Dardanelles.

Turkish officials said Saracoglu would hold no further talks either with Stalin or Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov before his departure.

Coinciding with the announcement of Saracoglu's leaving was the appearance of an article in the government newspaper Izvestia which asserted Britain and France could not establish an effective sea blockade against Germany because of the economic aid the reich would receive from Russia and Italy.

Ready to Help Reich
The article, signed by I. Vanoff, Soviet scientist, reflected support of Adolf Hitler's "peace campaign" and hinted that Russia was prepared to give Germany economic assistance on a large scale.

There was no indication of what the next move would be in Russia's negotiations with Turkey. Saracoglu was expected to confer shortly with Rumanian leaders.

It was considered significant that concluding recent pacts with Baltic states, the Russians always announced them before the departure of visiting envoys.

Meanwhile reports here told of an increasing flood of Jewish refugees from German-occupied Poland, pouring into adjoining Polish territory now held by the Russians.

The reports said that scattered remnants of the Polish army still were fighting a guerrilla campaign in eastern Poland, hiding in woods and marshes and wearing the uniform of Soviet soldiers they had killed in ambush.

yet. All necessary measures are being taken to increase the protection which in the last war proved effective.

The German air raid today was the second in two days on British naval centers. In yesterday's raid at the Firth of Forth near Edinburgh, Scotland, 16 lives were lost, 45 men were injured and from four to seven German warplanes were reported unofficially to have been brought down.

Shortly after the Scapa Flow raid today, air-raid alarms were sounded at numerous points along a 350-mile stretch of the English and Scottish coasts, the nearest to London being about 20 miles.

Both Churchill and Chatfield followed their accounts of German victories against British seapower with assertions that Britain also had gained striking successes against the German submarine fleet.

They estimated that from one-fourth to one-third of that fleet had been destroyed since the beginning of the war.

Churchill added that "nothing like this rate of destruction was obtained at any moment in the last war."

In the first six weeks of the war, Churchill said, "we may estimate that 13 U-boats have been sunk, 5 seriously damaged and possibly sunk and several others damaged."

Churchill announced that four submarines including two of the large ocean-going type were destroyed last Friday, the day before the Royal Oak was sunk.

Before today only the bare fact that the Royal Oak had been sunk, "believed by U-boat action," had been disclosed, with the casualty lists showing only 416 saved out of approximately 1,200 men aboard.

Alarms sounded today along the English and Scottish coasts were given by alert air raid precautions men on their toes after failure to sound an alarm at Edinburgh yesterday.

They began about 11 a. m. (4 a. m. C. S. T.) and in most instances all-clear signals were given within an hour. At Felixstowe, in the important Harwich harbor area, 60 miles northeast of London, a warning sounded at 1:30 p. m. (6:30 a. m. C. S. T.) with the all-clear signal about 30 minutes later.

Air Raid Warnings
Places where air raid warnings were sounded included the following, announced for publication: Scunthorpe, Ipswich, Grimsby, Southam, Newcastle, Sunderland, North and South Shields, Ramegate, Southend, Chesham, Driel, field and Chelmsford.

Warnings along the Firth of Forth included one at the mining center of Boness and at Dunfermline, north of the naval base of Rosyth, which was the center of attack yesterday.

Warning signals were sounded also at Hall and Bridlington.

Second Child in Family Found Dead From Suffocation

Milwaukee.—(P)—Last March 25, Ralph Albrecht, 10 months old, suffocated in his crib. Yesterday Raymond Albrecht, 31 months old, also was found suffocated.

The mother, Mrs. Carl Albrecht, said she went to Raymond's crib and found him "bluish." She called a physician who summoned a fire department inhalator, but the child was dead.

Albrecht is an automobile mechanic. The couple has one other child, a small son.

Threats Made in Neutrality Fight, Maloney Asserts of the chaos and disorder of Europe and Asia.

Walsh described the administration bill as a form of "pretended neutrality" which he said would aid England and France, by making arms available to them, and would arouse the enmity of Germany, which he argued would be denied those same arms.

"If the central powers come to despise and hate us for this unneutral position," he asked, "is there any power on earth that will stay their fury and desperation to suppress shipments at the source? This means submarines, even warplanes off our coast or outside our harbors, lying in wait for munition-laden ships, sinking them indiscriminately."

"It means convoys and battles off our coast, unrestricted submarine warfare, the sinking of American ships by mistake. It means bringing the European war right to our front door."

Walsh said he "regretted exceedingly" that he must oppose the will of the administration on this question. "But, deep-seated convictions of conscience and duty must prevail over every other consideration," he added.

"History is repeating itself. The days of 1917 are being re-enacted. The draft law is already prepared. The blanks for the casualty lists are ready. The government, finance, industry—all are in a war state of mind—ready to accept the inevitable."

The Hairy Ainus of Japan are a primitive race occupying a position comparable to that of the Indian in America.

The air ministry announced unidentified aircraft were reported near Hull and Grimsby shortly before 11 a. m. The communiqué said precautionary measures were taken and an air raid warning given. No enemy aircraft were identified there, the ministry said.

At the same time, the air ministry said a number of planes made successful daylight reconnaissance flights over western and northern England yesterday and that one aircraft had not returned.

Some excitement was caused in the Kings Cross area of northern London when a whistle sounded. Employees of some factories in the neighborhood were told that it was an air-raid warning. No one seemed to know whether it was a genuine alarm, but several hundred persons went into shelters.

Monday's Battle
The alert "chances" action of the civil defenses was in sharp contrast with yesterday's sensational and deadly engagement of British air and coastal forces in Scotland with German planes, during which warning devices were silent.

Hull, a city of about 300,000, is the key port of England's fishing fleets and has 186 acres of vital dockyards. Grimsby, 15 miles south of Hull, has about 100,000 population, and Bridlington, 26 miles northeast, about 15,000.

The casualty toll of yesterday's air raid on the Rosyth naval base was announced officially today as 15 dead and 12 seriously injured. This superseded a communiqué last night listing the casualties at 35 including eight slightly injured.

There were casualties among naval personnel, the only civilian wounded being an Edinburgh man struck by a stray bullet.

Asserting that at least four of twelve or fourteen Nazi bombers had been shot down during the attack, British military observers said the German percentage of loss had proved too costly to make the raid a success.

Cruiser Damaged
The British admiralty reported the bombers had damaged slightly the 9,100-ton cruiser Southampton, and sunk an admiral's barge and a pinasse (ship's boat) moored alongside.

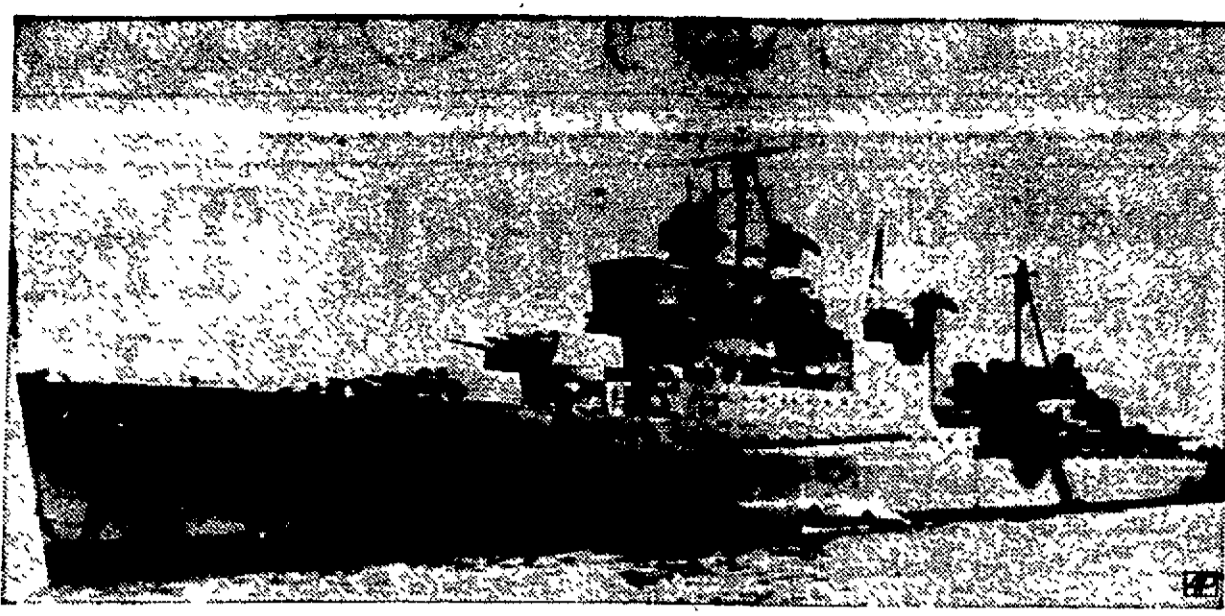

(A German communiqué said that two British planes had been shot down during the raid and that two Nazi bombers had failed to return to their bases.)

The admiralty said the Southampton, first British warship admittedly struck by German air raiders since the start of the war, was "ready for sea."

The hit on the Southampton, it was said, was a glancing blow on the bow scored by a dive bomber. Two other war vessels, the cruiser Edinburgh and the destroyer Mohawk, were showered with bomb splinters but were reported undamaged.

Among the men killed was Commander R. F. Jolly, who was in command of the Mohawk.

BRITISH CRUISER HIT BY GERMAN BOMB IN RAID
The British cruiser Southampton (above), which escorted the King and Queen on their trip to the United States, was damaged by a German bomb in a series of raids on the Firth of Forth on the Scottish coast. Thirty-five men aboard the Southampton and two other ships, the Cruiser Edinburgh and Destroyer Mohawk, were struck by bomb splinters. The admiralty said this was the first time a German bomb had struck a British warship.

Wisconsin Lawmaker Scores Trade Treaty

Washington.—(P)—Rep. Charles Hawks Jr. (R-Wis.) joined yesterday with a score of congressmen from the west and middlewest in commenting at a state department hearing on a trade agreement with Argentina.

Hawks, with the others, opposed any reduction in duties on farm and livestock products from Argentina. Both Democratic and Republican members of congress warned that the law permitting the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements would be revised by congress if they were permitted to cause injury to agriculture.

Any further reduction in duties on farm products, Hawks declared, "would only add to the misery" of the farmer. He specifically opposed reduction in duty on casein, lard, and turkeys.

Wausau Police Head Is Reckless Driver

Grand Island, Neb.—(P)—A man who gave his name as Walter Joseph English and said he was chief of police at Wausau, Wis., was fined $10 and costs in justice court here yesterday for reckless driving. Highway patrolmen said they clocked him at 75 to 80 miles an hour.

(At Wausau, Chief English was reported en route home from a convention in California.)

drove the German planes into the fire of fleet and shore anti-aircraft batteries and later pursued the raiders out to sea, suffered no casualties, the admiralty said.

The Nazi bombers failed to hit the famous $15,000,000 bridge across the Firth of Forth, although bombs dropped near the structure, sending geysers of water spouting high into the air. Destruction of the bridge might have bottled up war vessels moored in the Firth, observers said.

Throughout the raid, trains continued to cross the high span between Rosyth and the south bank of the Firth, giving passengers a thrilling glimpse of the air battle raging overhead.

Eye-witness accounts combined with a terse British communiqué to paint a picture of the raid, which developed between 2 and 3 o'clock p. m. Unofficial advice from Edinburgh indicated the raiders flew up the firth from the North sea at a high altitude, dodging coastal batteries and heading toward the firth bridge 30 miles inland.

To reach their objective the German bombers were forced to fly approximately 500 miles from bases on the German coast. The raiders made three separate attacks at intervals of about half an hour, witnesses said.

Sound of Firing
The racket of airplane motors and the sound of heavy firing as pom-pom guns opened up on both sides of the firth gave residents their first intimation of the raid.

The first contact between the German planes and royal air force craft, according to the British communiqué, occurred off May Island at the entrance to the firth, where two of the Nazi bombers were intercepted and driven back to sea.

"Another enemy aircraft was engaged 10 minutes later over Dalkeith," the communiqué said. "It fell in flames into the sea. Within a quarter of an hour a sharp combat took place off Cracks and another raid fell into the sea. A third German aircraft was destroyed in the pursuit."

The communiqué gave no details of the downing of the fourth German plane reported destroyed.

Threaten Bridge
Some of the planes diverted to within 300 feet of the firth bridge and the German planes machine-gunned the area between Queensferry and the north end of the span, said residents who had a close-up view of the raid.

A Dummerline merchant said that "at one time the sky seemed full of planes—it was a real dog-fight."

The Daily Express described the "dog-fight" in a manner in which the raid had been met.

"That all raids on Britain will have results as unimportant," the Daily Telegraph said, "is too much to be hoped, but at least there is reassuring evidence of the fallibility of the bomber and the strength of our defenses."

National Budget, Tax Problems are Still to be Met

Embargo Debate Obscures Domestic Issues for Present, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Although the embargo debate obscures domestic questions for the moment, the perplexing problems that have to be met in the next few months relating to the national budget and to taxes have by no means been sidetracked.

Lawrence

For one thing the congress has a committee of both the house and senate at work on tax changes which will be introduced at the January session. Increases in tax rates are expected not only for the persons of relatively low income, but in the brackets between $5,000 and $100,000 a year.

Likewise the problem of taking care of the WPA and the PWA has by no means been erased. It will be recalled that the spending-lending program which was defeated last summer was to have afforded a transition from public spending to private spending. The bill was laid aside, but it is still on the legislative calendar and may be expected to be revived just as soon as it becomes apparent that the losses in American trade due to pending cash and currency measures are substantial. At this time, government officials are working on the federal budget which goes into effect July 1, 1940. The estimates are being examined in the various governmental departments and agencies, and President Roosevelt will have to get ready by the end of December a measure forecasting the amount of money he thinks should be appropriated for disbursement beginning July 1, 1940.

Tax Receipts
It is almost certain that the recent increase in business volume will be reflected in increased tax receipts in certain lines and divisions, but will be more than offset by heavy losses in other directions. Customs duties will show heavy decreases due to the demoralization of foreign trade. Likewise, trade with Canada may undergo a serious diminution, especially when new restrictions requiring that articles sold to Canada be put on a cash basis are introduced into law.

There is always the possibility that other countries will benefit by these changes, especially in articles which are on a competitive basis and which are not at all related to war supplies. The administration bill is to provide that everything exported to Canada and other countries shall be bought for cash only, and this is bound to inject new complications in the operations of the trade structure.

The preparations of Canada to build plants for war purposes have been noted in press dispatches, and it is expected that this will draw some skilled labor from the United States, possibly forcing shortages on this side of the border which will affect wage rates. As wage scales rise, social security taxes increase, too, and the total amount extracted by the government tax collectors becomes a bigger factor than before in forcing increased prices, which, in turn, tend to cut down consumption and precipitate unemployment.

Government officials, incidentally, are plainly worried by the recent upward surge in prices for consumer goods because they fear it will mean curtailment of consumption and in turn cause unemployment. What America faces as a consequence of these various factors growing out of the war is a rearrangement of trade channels and an increase, for the time being, of unemployment in certain industries producing for export.

The big question is whether these economic convulsions, when all added up, will not cause the administration to ask for a budget virtually as large next year as is being spent in the present fiscal year. This, of course, means another large deficit, so that the chances of a balanced budget have been almost completely shattered by current events.

The whole Republican argument for the 1940 political campaign, which was to have been centered on the waste of government money, now will face a new rebuttal from the Democrats, namely that the war has necessarily cut down American trade and that the American people will gladly pay as the price of peace the extra billions required to finance unemployment.

Poultrymen Will Hear J. B. Hayes

Conference Will be Held Thursday Evening At Courthouse

Hatcherymen, feed dealers and special poultrymen have been invited by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agricultural agent, to a poultry conference at the courthouse at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. J. B. Hayes, extension poultry husbandman, will discuss poultry problems.

Two poultry culling demonstrations will be held during the afternoon, one at the Leo A. Eck farm, Shiocton, at 1 o'clock and the other at the Robert Gosse farm, Seymour, at 3 o'clock.

Among problems to be discussed at the demonstrations will be quality eggs, laying rations, greens for the flock in winter and whether only a pullet flock should be kept.

Kaw Gridders Eye League Title With Two Games to Play

Victory Saturday Will Cinch at Least Tie for Championship

Kaukauna—A victory which will assure at least a tie for North-eastern Wisconsin conference honors this season will be the aim of Coach Paul E. Little's gridders Saturday in the homecoming battle against New London, the only other undefeated team in the loop. After Saturday's battle, only one conference game remains with West De Pere on the Phantoms' field. The Phantoms have won only one game in three starts this season and that against the weak Clintonville team. A non-conference game with East De Pere, 1938 champions of the eastern division of the Northwestern conference, concludes the season here Armistice day.

Statistics of the five games won by the Kaws this year give them a clear edge over opponents. Kaukauna has averaged more than 20 points a game, piling up 107, and has held opponents to less than 7, yielding five touchdowns and four extra points. Oddly enough, the Kaws have failed to blank any of their opponents, all scoring one touchdown.

Jordana Is High
Karl Jordana added 14 points against Clintonville Saturday and now leads the Kaws backs with a total of 52, on seven touchdowns and 11 extra points. Bob Danner has 18, Leo Rohan 12, and Phelan Fernal, Willis Ranquette, George Steffen and Bill Alger 6 apiece.

In the matter of first downs, Kaukauna has made 48, while holding the enemy to 27. The Kaws have tagged the ball for 1,040 yards, with the Kaw line holding enemy carriers to 573. Passes have gained 361 yards for Kaukauna and 157 for opponents.
Out of 28 attempts the Littlemen have connected on 11 passes. Opposing teams have made good on 43 out of 48. The Kaws continue to take it on the chin in regard to penalties, being set back 245 yards by opponents 100. Of 22 fumbles, the Kaws have recovered 14.
The score by quarters shows that 22 of opponents' 34 points have come in the last period, with Kaw substitutes in action. No opponent has scored in the second quarter, and only one touchdown each has been tallied in the first and third periods. Kaukauna seems to turn on the power in the second quarter, with 41 points compared to 27 in the fourth, 20 in the first and 19 in the third.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys
If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking away from your system all the waste and poisons that build up in your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
If the 15 or 16 of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 or 16 of kidney tubes and filters get rid of poisonous waste from the blood. Get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Council May Act On City Garbage Disposal Problem

Board of Public Works Is Expected to Submit Report Tonight

Kaukauna—The board of public works is expected to give a report, as the common council meets at 7 o'clock tonight in the municipal building, on suggested action to furnish the city with a garbage collection system. The matter was discussed at the Oct. 3 meeting and referred to the board to work out several details.

It is planned to advertise for bids for garbage collection, with the lessee contracting to collect for two years, from March 1, 1940, to March 1, 1942. The board will recommend the type of container to be used, who will furnish it, the contractor or the resident, and how far the contractor shall be required to haul the garbage from the city limits.

Woodrow Diehl, route 4, Appleton, is now making garbage collections in the city from about 150 customers. It is expected he will bid on the city wide contract. Diehl has stated that if he gets the contract he will continue his private collections to the end of the year, otherwise the service will be discontinued.

Survey Plans
Also laid over from last meeting is a suggestion of the city planning board asking for a survey of city streets, in regard to location, size and distances apart of trees. The survey probably would be made with WPA labor. The council will consider a formal resolution asking the survey tonight. The state highway commission was asked to erect signs at each end of the Lave street bridge naming the Fox river, and another at Konkopot creek. Word from the state department on this matter is expected this evening.

Scout Committeemen Will Meet Thursday

Little Chute—A meeting of the Boy Scout committeemen will be held at 8 o'clock Thursday evening at the American Legion hall. Plans will be discussed for the fall and winter activities of the local troops. Arrangements also will be made for the members of the committee to attend the fall scouting conference at Gardener dam, Oct. 21 and 22. Ideas for the activities of the local groups are expected to be obtained at the conference.

A son was born Friday to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vanden Bergt. Mrs. Vanden Bergt formerly was Miss Marjorie Metz of this village.

Mrs. Jack Zinzoo of Milwaukee was a guest Sunday of her father, James Gerrits.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Vandenberg of Kenosha spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Vandenberg, Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brantmeier and daughters Bernice and Rosemary and Mrs. Anna Derfus of Sherwood were guests Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Smits.

Pete's Tavern Team Retains Its Lead in League at Waupaca

Waupaca—Pete's Tavern continues to set the pace in the Cham O'Leagues despite a two-game loss to the Windmill, in second place, while Spindt's Vets in the last place won two games from Salter's Tavern by narrow margins. Walley's Tavern gained a notch by taking three from the Home Grocery.

Individual high 3 went to H. Salter's Tavern with 534. High single game of 201 was rolled by Floyd Taylor of Walley's Tavern. Scores for the Cham O'Leagues league Oct. 13:

State Budget Appropriations For 2 Years to Exceed Taxes

"State budget appropriations for the 2-year period ending June 30, 1941, will be over $20,000,000 in excess of present taxes," according to estimates made by the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance.

"Budget appropriations for the two year period, including those passed by the legislature and those still pending before the governor, total $17,226,000," according to the Alliance figures. "Receipts to meet these anticipated appropriations will amount to about $57,768,000, leaving the budget unbalanced to the extent of $20,458,000," the Alliance estimates.

The Alliance also pointed out that the state treasury had only about $4,000,000 in cash on October 1, and that appropriations may exhaust this cash balance by the end of December of this year. If the 1937 experience is again realized in 1939 it may be that the state's cash will not be exhausted until some time in 1940.

"Possibilities of balancing the state budget by emergency board reduction in expenditures and temporary borrowing of highway funds is limited, and full use of these two methods would not bring the budget into balance," the Alliance stated.

Power to Cut
"The emergency board has the power to reduce state appropriations by 25 per cent but this right does not extend to such major appropriations as school aids, social security aids and highway aids. These limitations and the fact that allotments for the first six months of the new fiscal year have already been made, would limit the maximum amount of emergency board reductions to somewhere between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000," the Alliance estimates. This does not include the $5,000,000 relief appropriation which is also in the hands of the emergency board.

"The possibility of temporary borrowing of highway moneys as has been practiced for the last eight years to meet the state deficit is also limited. Cash collections of gasoline taxes and license fees are now being used to meet past allotments and contracts already outstanding. Highway receipts are fully obligated for most of the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, 1940," according to the Alliance, "so that the most the governor could hope to gain by refusing to sign future highway construction contracts would be approximately $4,000,000 and cash from this source would not be available until spring or summer of next year."

"All this means that the 18-man interim committee appointed by the legislature will have to devise additional taxes to balance the state budget even if expenditures are reduced and highway funds borrowed for this purpose," the Alliance stated.

EXCHANGE CLUB MAKES PRESENTATION

The Appleton Exchange club yesterday formally presented a hearing aid device to the deaf room of Morgan school.
The above picture shows Mayor John Goodland, Jr., left, presenting the device to Roland Nock, principal of Morgan school, at an Exchange club luncheon in the Conway hotel. Eli Sires is the full-time teacher and Miss Peggy Robinson the substitute in the deaf room. Money used to purchase the device was earned by the Exchange club through the sale of refreshments at the Fourth of July celebration at Pierce park. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Many German-Americans Want U. S. Arms Embargo Repealed

Princeton, N. J.—Ever since the opening of the neutrality debate in Congress there has been widespread speculation about the stand of various national groups within the United States. Particular interest has centered on the attitude of persons of German birth or recent German origin.

Now as the Pittman bill heads for a vote in the Senate shortly, an analysis of the voting in continuous Institute surveys on the arms embargo question reveals that a majority of American voters of all national origins are in favor of repealing the arms ban, save those of German origin.

Interestingly enough, however, nearly half (45 per cent) of those who identified themselves as first or second generation German-Americans said they would like to see the neutrality act changed. This would permit England, France and other possible belligerents with control of the seas to purchase war supplies in the United States while Germany, presumably, would not be able to do so.

In its continuous studies of public opinion on the question now before Congress the Institute has asked persons in every state: "In what country was your father born?" This has permitted a correlation with the replies to the neutrality question itself: "Do you think Congress should change the Neutrality law so that England, France or other nations can buy war supplies here?"

Citizens of British, Canadian and Russian origin are most in favor of changing the neutrality act's ban on arms, the survey shows. The Russian-American group undoubtedly includes many persons whose religious sympathies incline them to oppose the Nazi regime.

The results, when correlated, are as follows:

(Father Born in)	For Repealing Arms Embargo	For Keeping Arms Embargo
United States	60 Pct.	40 Pct.
Great Britain	68	32
Russia	67	33
Ireland	61	39
Canada	60	40
Italy	55	45
Germany	45	55
All Others	58	42

Hunters Appear In Justice Court

Arrested on Various Charges of Violating Game Laws

Waupaca—Only a fair number of pheasants were reported killed during the opening day Saturday, according to Warden George W. Whalen, and on Sunday the birds were "sitting tighter." Warden Whalen said that after a day of shooting the birds become so frightened they are hard to flush and the only way to raise them is with a good dog. Duck hunting is also a disappointment, as the northern central flyway because of the mild weather. Hunters anticipate better shooting if the weather becomes colder.

The following violations of hunting laws have resulted in arrests by the game warden in this vicinity: Victor Dreves, Larson, had his rifle confiscated although his fine was suspended, for carrying a rifle in his car. Leonard Behm, Weyauwega, arrested for hunting without license, had his gun confiscated, but his fine was suspended. H. R. Thomas, New London, accused of shooting ducks 25 minutes too early, paid a fine of $25 and costs. Daniel Beach, Menasha, paid a fine of $25 and costs for shooting from a blind in open water on Synco lake, as did Joseph Scovronski of Menasha for shooting ducks from a boat in open water. His gun also was confiscated. Each of the violators appeared before Justice S. W. Johnson and pleaded guilty.

Ed Ponke, town of Caledonia, paid a fine of $10 and costs after pleading guilty before Justice S. W. Johnson Monday. Ponke had a hen pheasant in his possession when arrested Friday by Warden Whalen Friday.

Ray Webb, Weyauwega, was arrested by Warden Whalen on a charge of carrying a shotgun in his automobile without having it knocked down or in a carrying case. He pleaded not guilty and his case has been set for hearing at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

Justice Johnson next Monday will hear the case of Ed Manske, who pleaded not guilty Monday to hunting without a license.

Back-Slid Communists are Still No Bargain to Pegler

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—It seems advisable at this point that Martin Dies, the chairman of the house committee on anti-American activities, be reminded that a backslid communist or a disillusioned fellow-traveler does not, by a simple word of renunciation, become washed of his past and eligible for the confidence of those who never made the pilgrimage to Moscow. Twice lately Mr. Dies has permitted himself to be photographed in a compromising spirit with individuals whose testimony, while it did put the finger on the conspiracy, nevertheless failed to vindicate themselves. He seemed to forget that a communist or a conscious tag-along could not have become such in the first place if he had not been qualified by character and that persons of that character never can be trusted. It is necessary to make use of them but not to indicate any other feeling toward them than that of a prosecutor toward a rogue who has turned state's evidence.

I have in mind particularly the man known as General Krivitsky, who claims to have been the chief of the Soviet's military intelligence—in short, a Moscow conspirator—in several European countries and now claims to have fallen out with Stalin. It is quite possible that he has broken with Moscow, but by his own story he has condemned himself as thoroughly as he has exposed anyone else. He is, by his own admission—in fact, his boast—a dangerous man, and when his testimony has been amplified and checked this country easily could do without him.

The Maurice Malkin who testified so glibly to Soviet espionage and admitted a prison record for abetting in a strike, need not be embraced merely because his testimony was useful. If it was, its value seems doubtful, but it will not have been altogether useless if only it provides ground for a persecution that will put him away again.

Fact That "They" Couldn't Erase Record
Ben Gitlow, the deposed head of the American communist party, gave interesting information about Soviet crimes against the United States, the forgery of passports and the counterfeiting of American money, but the mere fact of his having quit the organization over a matter of rivalry or discipline doesn't erase the record of his service in the party at the time of its most vicious treachery to this nation. Nothing can acquit him of a nature which was capable of committing these evil operations, and his apostasy to the party can be attributed to no change of principle or character but only to jealousy or a quarrel over procedure.

I would cite, also, J. B. Matthews, the American who gave us the term fellow-traveler in last year's investigation and who has now bobbed up as the chief investigator for the Dies committee. Matthews may do good work hunting down his late comrades, but in his own testimony and in the book in which he later explained all this man proves that he was himself a part of the scheme to undermine the American form of government at the instance of a foreign power. He makes a pathetic attempt to exonerate himself of deliberate lying.

"I saw," he wrote of the Russian famine, "such appalling sights of poverty as would move the coldest heart—thousands of men and women fighting like wild animals to board the trains, women separated from their children and screaming long after the train had left their offspring behind."

Now He's Treated With Dignity And Respect
He saw famine, but later, back in New York, at the request of a communist paper and without reading them, he issued a denial of a series of stories in which another writer described the horrible suffering in the Ukraine. He denounced these stories as a betrayal of the working class, and says "I had no more thought of lying than of flying. All of us fellow-travelers were ready to help the communist party in its predicament. In my own mind the Soviet union was the fatherland of the working class. How, therefore, could it have a famine which would take its toll by the million even though I had seen the evidence of it with my own eyes? Three million dead of starving but no mass meetings to save the Ukraine from Stalin's terror."

This educated man, an intellectual, sore-head, now working for the Dies committee, claims he didn't know the difference between truth and falsehood and the committee treats him with dignity and respect merely because he squealed!

Such people and all those who recently quit the party or denied the sympathies which they formerly showed, especially in labor unions, are the same today as they were before petty differences estranged them. The Soviet government has done nothing in the last two months or the last 10 years any more savage or treacherous than it had already done when these individuals, on that point, never hesitated to regard it as the greatest experiment ever made for human betterment.

Study Club of Church At Kimberly Planning Dinner at Appleton
Kimberly—The Study club of the First Presbyterian church will hold a 6:30 dinner at the Copper Kettle, Appleton, Thursday evening. A business meeting will follow with Mrs. Henry Patch, newly elected president, presiding.

The program committee of the club met at the home of Mrs. Patch last week to outline plans for the coming year. Those attending were Mrs. Harold Fird, Mrs. Carl Krieser and Mrs. L. C. Smith.

The Rev. and Mrs. L. C. Smith returned home Friday from Milwaukee where they attended the synod meeting of the Presbyterian churches. The sessions were conducted at the Bethany church, Excelsior temple, Milwaukee, and Carroll college, Waukesha.

The sessions were held from Tuesday through Thursday, Mrs. Smith also visited her mother, Mrs. Mary Russell, in Chicago last week.

Holy Name court of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters will hold its regular meeting at the clubhouse at 7:30 Thursday evening. After the business session, cards will be played.

The first card party at the clubhouse last week, sponsored by the women of the Holy Name parish, cleared over $114. The women on the committee to sponsor the next card party to be held at the clubhouse Sunday evening, will meet at the school Friday evening to complete plans.

A son was born Saturday to Mr. and Mrs. Otto Harke.

The Booster club will sponsor a dress-up dancing party for members and their friends at the clubhouse Friday evening. No one will be admitted without being in costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Verhagen and sons visited at St. Joseph's orphanage Sunday.

Russia Facing Choice of Sacrificing 5-Year Plan Or Pulling Hitler's Leg

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY
Washington—(P)—One glance at the blueprint of the current Soviet Five-Year plan, and you wonder whether Stalin is (1) sacrificing the plan on the altar of Russo-German trade, or (2) pulling Hitler's leg.

Go back, as I did, to January of this year, when Stalin laid down the law for the third Five-Year plan (1938-42). Here's a part of what he said:

"It is undeniable that . . . the country (U. S. S. R.) still lags behind the capitalist states in an economic sense. . . . Because of the low level of industrial production which prevailed before the World war, the present level is still below that of capitalist countries with respect to per capita production: in such respects as electric power, pig iron, steel and coal production and the manufacture of consumption goods, such as textiles, paper, soap and some others, the U. S. S. R. is still backward . . ."

This backwardness must be completely overcome before communism can triumph in its historic competition with capitalism. Stalin was concerned with communist stomachs, too. He said: "The third-plan period is to carry further the satisfaction of the needs and desires of the workers for foodstuffs, housing facilities and services of a domestic and cultural nature. . . ."

And how did Stalin plan to carry through this advancement? He decreed in the same speech an increase in production all along the line. He ordered industry to increase the value of its output by 88 per cent, come 1942. Agriculture got instructions to step up its output 53 per cent.

All of this was duly reported in the official Russian newspaper, Pravda, and translated and reproduced in bulletins by the United States Department of Commerce.

Again very soon after the Stalin orders were published, Pravda made the plight of the Soviet even plainer to the communist in the street, by comparing Russia's production with capitalist America. The pictogram, headed "Production," is based on Pravda's comparison.

How Can It Be Done? Now, asks the American economist who knows Russian trade, how can Russia step up the production of raw materials to feed an industrial machine charged with increasing production by 88 per cent, and at the same time export raw materials to Germany?

Or, if it's grain they're going to export, here's another picture in statistics: Official Soviet figures listed by the United States Department of Commerce indicate total grain crop production at an annual rate just now of some 2,300,000,000 bushels, or about 21 bushels per capita. (You can compare that with the United States per capita production of 38 bushels.)

Last year, Russia had only 50,000,000 bushels to export, not necessarily because it was a true surplus over the needs of her people, but because she needed the gold it brought in the world market.

Even so, 50 million bushels of grain for two nations mobilized to the hit as are Germany and Russia, is a mere drop in the feed bucket.

Where We Come In
Now what about the products Germany could send to Russia?

United States Department of Commerce figures on Russian trade, taken from official Russian sources, show pretty clearly that the deficiency Germany could supply would be machinery, tools, and similar finished products.

And what nation supplied that deficiency in Russia last year?

The United States is the culprit. We've taken the place of Germany in Russia's trade with western nations. And conservative estimates indicate that some 80 per cent of our exports last year were machines, tools, and products of that kind.

Here's A Catch

Therefore, if Russia plans to switch all that machine business to Germany, she must face the prospect of a costly re-tooling of many large machine units in her production plants. You can't have machinery of one pattern turning out part of a product, and machinery of another pattern turning out the rest of it. Not only would the process of re-tooling be extremely costly, but it would have a tendency to slow down production all along the assembly lines. And that would probably slow down the pace of Stalin's ambitious third Five-Year plan.

Therefore, American economists are wondering whether Stalin is going to sacrifice part of his plan, or pull Hitler's leg and send no raw materials to Germany.

Trying to swing both the trade agreement with Germany and a third Five-Year plan at the same time, would be a good deal like trying to have one's cake and eat it too.

THE PRESIDENT WHIPS THE HAM-AND-EGGERS

It doesn't seem exactly kosher to us for President Roosevelt to be cracking down so heavily on the ham-and-egggers, mostly stale eggs, out on the Pacific Coast just because they have a screwy notion of how to get $30.00 a week for each aging person from no one and nowhere.

If the President poses as a critic of daft financial ideas he may get the whole country laughing. But that he assumes he has found one in California worse than anything he ever exploited himself is self-evident.

It may be only a matter of choice, and everyone for himself, but we incline to the ham-and-egggers as preferred to some of the cruel shams that have been advanced in the Roosevelt name.

The ham-and-egggers are a revolutionary offshoot of the Townsendites and they haven't paid any royalties for the use of the copyright. They claim that by issuing warrants—and they should be for the arrest of someone—to every person 50 years or over they can make this script serve as cash by compelling whoever uses it to attach a 2 cent "redemption stamp" which must be purchased from the state for honest-to-goodness money. The story is something like "now you see it and now you don't," that old skin game worked at the county fairs until the public became disgusted. For with the redemption stamps 52 of them must be affixed to a warrant before it may be retired for the value of 50 of them.

But perhaps the thing that ruffles the imperial Roosevelt mind is that the ham-and-egggers have employed without permission one of his famous mixtures of coercion and extortion to force people to do what they don't want to do and under the constitution as it has been written for 150 years couldn't be made to do.

It may be remembered that when Mr. Roosevelt wanted to make the states knuckle in to him he wrote taxes to lash upon people's backs "unless they consented" to the laws he had no right to enact. We are speaking of the time when he was virtual dictator and congress had crawled into the ground.

The ham-and-egggers put a penalty tax of 3 per cent on all transactions that are not paid with the script and then they take another chapter from the Black Hand by providing that all state, county, city and school district funds must be deposited in banks that clear the worthless script.

While the whole plan of the ham-and-egggers is a rare piece of fabric with a beautifully nutty odor, it has distinguishable features over several Roosevelt financial policies that must be highly commended. It at least seeks to be practical. It at least tries to be workable. It doesn't write debts all over the cuff. It makes no effort to parallel itself with Hitler for the broken word.

But it is nevertheless perfectly blind. It hasn't even the sense to look up Alberta's dismal failure with another chapter of hocus-pocus. It shut its eyes when Minneapolis sent a man to the asylum last week because he said he had perfected perpetual motion and looked the other way when Chicago incarcerated another because he invented a means of making water run up hill of its own motion.

While it is crackpot it is not necessarily No. 1 crackpot in this country.

THE ARMY, THE NAVY AND THE MARINES

Post-Crescent wires were rather warm this morning with comment, questions and criticism concerning the editorial of last night in which the army was taken to task for issuing a high commission in the marines, away beyond his depth, to young Roosevelt.

"Why hang that on to the army," was the general complaint, "since the marines belong to the navy?" The very question was discussed in our editorial department before the article was printed. The word "army" is often used in the broader sense as inclusive of all the uniformed forces of the country and is to be taken in that sense when the point involved has only to do with a principle of conduct and not a distinguishing arm of the service.

Nevertheless, our respects to the many who telephoned, all of whom once wore our army uniforms, and are mighty particular that their branch of the service shall not be splashed upon without good reason.

ENGLAND AND LINDBERGH

Those who heard or read Colonel Lindbergh's recent radio address must have been impressed with the speaker's single purpose of serving his country, and that, alone.

But several English periodicals have assailed the colonel. He is called "American Trouble Maker No. 1" and "International Busybody." He is accused of developing "the Hitler mind" and one writer assumes that millions of Americans "must have switched off their radios" with the conclusion that the speaker was hardly qualified to talk about democracy.

Colonel Lindbergh, in fact, developed a unique and, in many places in America, acceptable theory, when he proposed that as a gesture of our hatred of warfare we prohibit the sale of munitions to anyone and permit the sale of all defensive weapons to everyone. He further developed and extended the thesis that Europe should get out of this Western Hemisphere and that America should acquire those strategically located islands that are important outposts in the development and protection of itself and many of which belong to Britain.

These English periodicals are indicating an extreme impatience when they start cussing out an American for thinking in terms of America and not of the British Empire.

Colonel Lindbergh is entitled to our particularly hearty salute for having lived abroad several years and been entertained by the nabobs of all countries without losing either our blessed common touch or a mind that functions with no other objective than the welfare of his native land. While the English periodicals mentioned represent only a small portion of those that speak the mind of England they do expose that same intemperate peevishness at America that was widely indicated in practically all publications printed on the "light little island" when it was time to pay the interest on the billions we advanced to England toward the end of the last war to save it from destruction and to permit it to name its peace terms with Germany.

FRANK MAKES A GREAT SPEECH

Down at Chicago services were held Sunday at Jackson Park in recognition of Citizenship Day at which new citizens are formally welcomed into the great fraternity of America. No matter just now that Chicago was months behind Wisconsin where in many places these same ceremonies were held many months ago.

But one of the new citizens bearing the difficult name of Frank Szczajush, made a great speech Sunday. Like most great speeches it was short. The speaker was a steel worker with the thickest of calluses on his hand and supporting on his upper lip one of those old-fashioned handlebar mustachios. He merely said as he fingered his new certificate: "You do not know how good it is to be a citizen of America."

And the fact is that millions who are citizens really don't know because they have no appreciation of their citizenship.

It is the men who can make comparisons who appreciate. It is those who still have clear cut memories of what they left behind them that are astonished at the lack of understanding of the rest of us of what a great thing we have in America. It is men who never wore wool or tasted butter until they came here who can judge America's worth.

While we are listening to high flown oratorical efforts that consume hours it is good to think of Frank who knows how to press into very small space a very great statement.

THAT MATTER OF 90 DAYS' CREDIT

According to the National City Bank of New York, a recognized authority in such matters, both France and England are in a much better situation financially to fight a prolonged war than they were 25 years ago.

The bank's statement is to the effect that in 1914 Great Britain had 270 millions in bank balances in this country whereas today it has 580 millions; that in 1914 France had 30 millions of such balances whereas today she has 275 millions. Continuing it points out that in 1914 Britain had 800 millions of gold, and today has well over two billions; that in 1914 France had less than two billions in gold, and today over three billions.

To these figures, of course, must be added the annual production of gold in both the French and British empires. That production in 1914, says the National City, was but 260 millions whereas in 1938 it was 730 millions. True, the holdings of French and British citizens in American securities have been cut from their high of four billions in 1914 to less than a billion and a half today. This is a disadvantage to the countries involved but a great advantage to America since there are to be less of these securities thrown upon the market and therefore less disturbance to our own financial structure.

Thus these empires are in a very sweet financial condition to meet such demands as America may put upon them for their purchases here, either of munitions or food. And thus it becomes apparent, too, that there is no justification for the proposal in the act pending before the senate to extend them 90 days' commercial credit.

It is customary to grant credit to cover the period of shipment of goods and provide an opportunity for testing them upon their arrival. But since credit was a perilous adventure before, it is not unreasonable now to require the purchasing nations to send their testers to this country and pay for the goods upon acceptance.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Bird Song:
A little old lady, worried and fluttery, climbed carefully up the stairway of the Eighth Avenue subway's Fifth Avenue station. She took each step slowly. When one is old it is unwise to dash up stairs. Besides, she could not grasp the hand rail as she should have, for her hands were gently cradled; and in them, lying very still, was a ruby-throated humming-bird.

(I warn you—you who love action in your literature and you who see no drama in little things—that the story I recite is calm and of no consequence. It is certainly, by any measure of literary economics, not worth the words I shall give to it. I know only that it brought to my throat that little lump that is the thermometer of men's emotions; and I shall always say that anything that stirs the heart is important, even such a simple affair as the silent form of a ruby-throated humming-bird in the wrinkled fingers of a little old lady.)

George Deszendorf is a taxicab driver—No. 59458. His "tend" is at the curb where the subway stairs come from the earth at Fifth Avenue and 53rd Street, and it was there he was parked, awaiting a fare, when the fluttery old lady picked her way across the sidewalk and touched him timidly on the arm.

"It is a little bird," she said, holding her cupped hands up so he could see. "A little bird that is dead. Pretty, isn't it? Even dead it is pretty."

"I never saw a bird like that before," said No. 59458.

"I found it on the subway," went on the old lady. "Mighty strange place for a humming-bird. Haven't the slightest idea how it got there, way down on a subway train under the East River. Seemed almost heather to leave it there. Subways are no place for humming-birds, even when they're dead."

"Yes," agreed No. 59458.

"So I'm wondering if you will take care of the poor thing—I just can't drop it into a waste basket on the street like it was banana peels or yesterday's newspaper. I wish you would take the poor thing and—well, dispose of it. You look like a nice man."

"Yes'm," said No. 59458.

His cap lay on the seat beside him. Into it he placed the motionless bird. When the little old lady went away, he said to himself, he would wrap it in a paper and toss it in the basket at the corner.

A few minutes later, glancing into the cap, he saw a slight stir. The bird was not dead. He lifted it and warmed it in his hands. "Pretty," murmured No. 59458. "Maybe it'll live 'til I get through work. I'd like to take it home. The Missus ain't never seen a humming-bird."

From the newsboy on the corner he got a small box. He panned it full of holes for air, and laid the gasping bundle of feathers gently inside. Just then a fare jumped into his cab. No. 59458 quickly shoved the box down to the floor of the cab and whisked away about his business.

He was busy for the next two hours—too busy to think of the ruby-throated humming-bird. At last there was a lull. He pulled up to the curb. "Surely the bird is dead," he told himself.

He picked up the box. He lifted the lid. A flash of feathers shot from the box. The ruby-throated humming-bird streaked up, out and away.

There is no more to the story. It would be nice to add that the bird, grateful to an old lady and a cab driver for saving its life, came back to each of them in the days that followed and, like the birds in Oscar Wilde's beautiful tale of The Happy Prince, brought them precious stones in its dainty bill. Such things happen only in fables. This was New York. This was the city where people do not come back to repay their benefactors. Besides, it was just a humming-bird.

So it flew away, frightened perhaps, but free—free to wing south, away from the biting autumn chill, free to seek out the flowers and stand before them once again, poised on wings that once again could whip the air so swiftly as to overcome gravity.

"I wish I'd kept the lid on," sighed No. 59458. "It sure was pretty. I bet the Missus would've got a big kick out of it. She never saw a humming-bird."

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER
Washington—Day by day in every way, sailing the seven seas is becoming tougher and tougher.

The war brings a new "hazard" to navigation" almost every day. And each new hazard reported is carefully recorded in the daily bulletin of the naval hydrographic bureau, which are distributed widely.

Most exciting hazards are floating mines—that is, if you except submarines and other ships of war. The hydrographic office does not record warships as "hazards to navigation." It is not considered to be one of the most friendly acts in the world to tip off one belligerent where another belligerent's ship is to be found.

That does not mean that submarines and belligerent warships in general are not reported by Yankee merchantmen. They are. But the navy considers such reports as confidential.

The only bit of that sort of information made available was the statement by the President that submarines had been seen off the Atlantic coast and again up around Alaska. The President did not say whose submarines they were. You had to guess.

Special Hazards

Within a month after war started, regulations for traveling through the English channel had been changed several times. A special English pilot is required to take a ship through. Any commander can try going it alone, but his chances of hitting a mine are very good.

And then there are extra special hazards. On Sept. 28, floating mines were reported in the narrow southern channels of the North sea east of Norway. The same day another was reported in the Mediterranean just offshore from where Spain and France join.

More reports to run this way:

Sept. 29—Britain lays down new rules for ships entering the harbor at Bermuda. Obey them or you may draw fire. Three floating mines are reported in mid-channel between Holland and England. England announces the area of a new mine field along the North sea coast from Hull to Newcastle.

Sept. 30—The commander of Fort Monroe, at the mouth of the Chesapeake bay, warns ships to stay out of a certain area where this important coast defense point is trying out a mine operation. Italy closes all channels but one for entering the Adriatic seaport of Trieste.

Oct. 2—Germany sends the U. S. a note of caution that neutral ships approaching the English or French coasts must not resist search, must not try to run away or send radio calls about the presence of submarines.

Oct. 3—France sends word that navigation lights on channel islands off the north French coast are extinguished or reduced in power. Sailing there without shore lights is tricky.

Lights May Go Out

Oct. 4—Britain warns of two protective mine fields off the south and west coast of England. Four floating mines are reported in mid-North sea channel between Harwich, England, and Rotterdam, Holland.

Oct. 5—U. S. Ship Trenton reports a mine drifting in the north Baltic.

Oct. 6—Mariners cautioned by England that navigation lights off Egypt, Palestine, Cyprus, Malta and Gibraltar may be extinguished without notice.

Oct. 7—England reports a whole network of shipping channels along her south and west coasts blocked by mines or "sunken obstructions."

THE ARMY, THE NAVY AND THE MARINES

Post-Crescent wires were rather warm this morning with comment, questions and criticism concerning the editorial of last night in which the army was taken to task for issuing a high commission in the marines, away beyond his depth, to young Roosevelt.

"Why hang that on to the army," was the general complaint, "since the marines belong to the navy?" The very question was discussed in our editorial department before the article was printed. The word "army" is often used in the broader sense as inclusive of all the uniformed forces of the country and is to be taken in that sense when the point involved has only to do with a principle of conduct and not a distinguishing arm of the service.

Nevertheless, our respects to the many who telephoned, all of whom once wore our army uniforms, and are mighty particular that their branch of the service shall not be splashed upon without good reason.

ENGLAND AND LINDBERGH

Those who heard or read Colonel Lindbergh's recent radio address must have been impressed with the speaker's single purpose of serving his country, and that, alone.

But several English periodicals have assailed the colonel. He is called "American Trouble Maker No. 1" and "International Busybody." He is accused of developing "the Hitler mind" and one writer assumes that millions of Americans "must have switched off their radios" with the conclusion that the speaker was hardly qualified to talk about democracy.

Colonel Lindbergh, in fact, developed a unique and, in many places in America, acceptable theory, when he proposed that as a gesture of our hatred of warfare we prohibit the sale of munitions to anyone and permit the sale of all defensive weapons to everyone. He further developed and extended the thesis that Europe should get out of this Western Hemisphere and that America should acquire those strategically located islands that are important outposts in the development and protection of itself and many of which belong to Britain.

These English periodicals are indicating an extreme impatience when they start cussing out an American for thinking in terms of America and not of the British Empire.

Colonel Lindbergh is entitled to our particularly hearty salute for having lived abroad several years and been entertained by the nabobs of all countries without losing either our blessed common touch or a mind that functions with no other objective than the welfare of his native land. While the English periodicals mentioned represent only a small portion of those that speak the mind of England they do expose that same intemperate peevishness at America that was widely indicated in practically all publications printed on the "light little island" when it was time to pay the interest on the billions we advanced to England toward the end of the last war to save it from destruction and to permit it to name its peace terms with Germany.

FRANK MAKES A GREAT SPEECH

Down at Chicago services were held Sunday at Jackson Park in recognition of Citizenship Day at which new citizens are formally welcomed into the great fraternity of America. No matter just now that Chicago was months behind Wisconsin where in many places these same ceremonies were held many months ago.

But one of the new citizens bearing the difficult name of Frank Szczajush, made a great speech Sunday. Like most great speeches it was short. The speaker was a steel worker with the thickest of calluses on his hand and supporting on his upper lip one of those old-fashioned handlebar mustachios. He merely said as he fingered his new certificate: "You do not know how good it is to be a citizen of America."

And the fact is that millions who are citizens really don't know because they have no appreciation of their citizenship.

It is the men who can make comparisons who appreciate. It is those who still have clear cut memories of what they left behind them that are astonished at the lack of understanding of the rest of us of what a great thing we have in America. It is men who never wore wool or tasted butter until they came here who can judge America's worth.

While we are listening to high flown oratorical efforts that consume hours it is good to think of Frank who knows how to press into very small space a very great statement.

THAT MATTER OF 90 DAYS' CREDIT

According to the National City Bank of New York, a recognized authority in such matters, both France and England are in a much better situation financially to fight a prolonged war than they were 25 years ago.

The bank's statement is to the effect that in 1914 Great Britain had 270 millions in bank balances in this country whereas today it has 580 millions; that in 1914 France had 30 millions of such balances whereas today she has 275 millions. Continuing it points out that in 1914 Britain had 800 millions of gold, and today has well over two billions; that in 1914 France had less than two billions in gold, and today over three billions.

To these figures, of course, must be added the annual production of gold in both the French and British empires. That production in 1914, says the National City, was but 260 millions whereas in 1938 it was 730 millions. True, the holdings of French and British citizens in American securities have been cut from their high of four billions in 1914 to less than a billion and a half today. This is a disadvantage to the countries involved but a

School Officials Explain Problems At PTA Meeting

125 Persons Hear Discussion of Responsibilities, Methods

The three R's may have been a matter of a little red school house, a slate and a hornbook with one teacher in the old days but 125 parents and teachers discovered a more complicated system in the Appleton schools today in the form discussion by Homer Benton, B. J. Rohan and Miss Martha Sorensen at the Edison Parent-Teacher association last night at Edison school auditorium. The responsibilities and limitations of power of the school board, why children fail in school, the psychological effect of the report card, reading methods and methods of teaching safety were among the subjects discussed by the three speakers.

Mr. Benton, representing the board of education, told parents that the quality of education depends not entirely upon the school board, but also on the money the taxpayers give the board with which to build a better and more inclusive educational program. Directing part of his talk toward a recreational program in the schools, Mr. Benton declared that in order to have more things in a school system, such as a recreation program, the citizens of Appleton must supply the necessary funds to carry out such a program. "The school board," he said, "has tried to give children, young men and women in Appleton the best school facilities and school teaching staff that could be purchased with the money the taxpayers have given them."

He outlined the duties of the board of education and pointed out their limitations of power. The school board in Appleton prepares a school budget for the year, which is subject to the approval of the city council, and the board also subscribes new studies and subjects which are under the supervision of the state superintendent of schools. Miss Sorensen, grade school supervisor, discussed recent changes in school methods from two angles, the new kindergarten and first grade entrance problems and the new report card.

Miss Sorensen pointed out that after 10 years of study throughout the United States on failures of primary grade school children, educators have found that children with normal mentality often fail because they enter the first grade at too early an age. "We accept the fact that the first grade is a place where a child learns to read, therefore, most parents will recognize the fact that a child must be ready and capable to start when he enters the first grade," Miss Sorensen said. She discussed further the tests which have been studied for five years in Appleton which enable teachers to determine whether or not a child is ready for first grade work.

The child, even a few months under the age of six, is being done harm if he is placed in first grade when he isn't able to learn to read. Often a child with high intelligence suffers in school work because he is six months younger than the rest of the class, Miss Sorensen said. A child may pass first grade, and even struggle through second, but being unable to cope with content reading, will fall in higher grades because he started school too early, she said.

Study Attitudes Miss Sorensen urged parents to notice the remarks on report cards on their child's habits and attitudes rather than the academic markings, since it is an indication of his training for citizenship. A child today is graded according to his own particular ability rather than in competition with all the other children in his class. Under the present marking of grades, the slow child has as much encouragement, the same chance for development and the chance for a happy, secure school environment as the bright child, she stated.

Miss Sorensen said that a teacher has no right to be so inhuman as to put a constant failing mark on a child for being slow, when often the slow child is the one who works the hardest in his class, that a child rather have a good citizen, than merely a good student. The new marking is democratic and gives encouragement to the child, Miss Sorensen said.

Superintendent Rohan contrasted the way we used to live in the "horse and buggy" days with modern life and applied it to modern trends in education. Using reading methods and the teaching of safety in the schools as examples, he stressed the present policy in Appleton of taking a subject of study and building an entire unit through high school work. This, he pointed out, gives the whole picture of the child. School officials attempt to study problems over a period of years, and then, after obtaining expert information, work toward an objective, Mr. Rohan said, using manuscript writing in the lower grades as an example.

"In order to meet the changing needs the public schools must attempt to formulate a program that meets these needs and works at the same time toward accepted ideas," he stated. He explained how reading is the basis of straight thinking, oral expression and outlined how safety is brought to school children from the time they enter school until they finish high school. Hosts and hostesses for the meeting included parents from the first grades; Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Sigman, Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Thoms, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Saecker, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Reinke, Dr. and Mrs. H. F. O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. James Mackey, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Buchanan, Mr. C. J. Hanlon, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Flourness.

LAWRENTIANS CELEBRATE BY CUTTING FIRST CLASS

Having won their first homecoming football game in more than a decade, Lawrence college students decided it would be an insult to the football team to go to school Monday morning as if nothing had happened, and so they staged a victory strike. During the 8 o'clock class hour yesterday morning the classrooms were empty, but the corridors of Main hall, where these pictures were taken, were filled with students.

Dean Donald M. Du Shane, upper right, came down the stairway toward the end of the hour to talk to the young people, explaining that the administration had decided to let the last morning class out early so that the students could release their high spirits at an 11:45 pep meeting in the little gymnasium. He advised them, however, to return to their 9 o'clock classes, warning them that they would receive "cuts" if they didn't. The strikers applauded and went to class. Lawrence college won its first homecoming game in 14 years Saturday afternoon when it defeated Carleton college, 18-8. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Outagamie County Pioneer Succumbs

James R. Butler, 76, Dies: Lived Near Mackville Most of His Life

James R. Butler, 76, lifelong resident of Outagamie county, died at 1:50 yesterday afternoon after a lingering illness. He lived at the home of his sister, Mrs. John Bloomer, 733 W. Fifth street, the last eight years. Mr. Butler was born in the town of Center Nov. 3, 1863, and lived near Mackville most of his life. He was a member of St. Mary church, Appleton.

Modern Motor Tuneup Is Studied in Class At Vocational School

A trade extension class in modern motor tuneup is offered in the auto mechanics department of the Appleton Vocational school, with new equipment recently purchased used during class work.

Homer Pence, automotive instructor for the school, directs the class, in which each lecture is illustrated with slides. The class is for men already engaged in automotive service and meets Thursday evenings at the school. This week's will be the second meeting of the class. There is room for several more registrations. It was announced today.

The automotive division of the school has acquired considerable new equipment for use in classes, among it an 8-cylinder 1938 car motor.

Taking of Testimony Continues in 4 Suits

Taking of testimony continued in circuit court of Judge Edgar V. Werner today in four damage actions totaling $40,500 which are an outgrowth of a fatal traffic accident on old Highway 41 north of Appleton Jan. 17, 1938. Three passengers in a Wisconsin Power and Light company bus, who claimed they were injured in the accident in which a Kaukauna motorist was killed, and the power company are plaintiffs in the suits. The accident occurred when the William Paschen, Kaukauna, passed a parked truck and skidded into the path of the oncoming bus.

Consider Warrant In State Slaying

District Attorney Ponders Charge to be Filed Against Woman

Dodgeville—A warrant charging either first or third degree manslaughter would be issued today, District Attorney George Larson said, for Mrs. Emma Steiner, 37, following an inquest into the death of Herman Everson, 49, farm hand and escaped inmate of the Vernon county asylum.

Everson, the coroner's jury found yesterday, came to his death because of shots fired by Mrs. Steiner. Mrs. Steiner surrendered last Tuesday following the shooting. Everson died Saturday. The woman has been under $2,000 bond on an assault charge. Larson said the new warrant would be served when she appeared today for a hearing on the original charge.

Larson said Mrs. Steiner related she shot Everson while he fought with her husband, Albert, 50. The fight started, she was quoted, when she told Albert that Everson had attacked her twice while Everson worked on the farm during Steiner's illness last summer.

Two Milwaukeeans Held on U. S. Charges

Milwaukee—Harry E. Delworth, 32, watchman on a WPA handicraft project, and George Walker, 46, an engraver, were under $5,000 bonds each today for federal grand jury action after pleading preliminary hearings yesterday on charges of conspiracy to counterfeit and illegal possession of engravings for currency.

They were arraigned before United States Commissioner Floyd Jenkins.

John Voss, United States secret service agent here, said Delworth was arrested in a raid on the project printing shop Sunday while he was printing counterfeit $5 and $10 bills with a total face value of $12,600. The bills, 640 of each denomination, were printed on one side when detectives entered the shop, Voss said.

The agent announced that Walker, arrested at his home, had admitted making the plates for the bills at the instigation of Delworth.

Man Who Derailed Soo Train Is Found Insane

Waukegan—A circuit court jury decided John Bourne, 42, of Fond du Lac, Wis., who confessed tampering with a switch and derailling 20 cars of a Soo Line freight train Aug. 30 near Lake Villa, was insane or feeble-minded. Judge W. P. Pierce ordered Bourne confined in an Illinois institution.

Y Campaign Goes 'Over the Top' in Membership Drive

Exceed Goal by 25; 'Cleanup Work' Planned by Co-Chairmen

The Appleton Y.M.C.A. campaign, which ended officially last night, "went over the top" as far as memberships are concerned but fell some $1,100 short of its financial goal, it was announced today. It is likely, however, that during the "cleaning up" process in the wake of the campaign that the goal of $15,000 will be reached. The "Y" has a total of 1,225 members. The goal was 1,200.

Co-chairmen William E. Buchanan and William U. Gallaher will meet with leaders of the drive Thursday noon at the "Y" and lists of people who have not renewed memberships will be distributed. The campaign workers all of whom have volunteered to assist in the cleanup work, will be expected that by the time the week is over, the campaign fund will have been considerably enlarged.

The division headed by the Rev. G. H. Blum and George Werner finished first in the campaign with a total of 3,871 points. It was reported at last night's dinner meeting attended by more than 70 campaigners.

The other divisions, designated by their leaders, finished as follows: Second, Franklin C. Jesse and J. Bon Davis, 3,289; third, Margaret Doecker and Genevieve Kronschnabel, 3,092; fourth, Harold Brown and Ross Williams, 2,948; fifth, Cecil Furringer and C. O. Baetz, 2,417.

Girls Team First The team composed of Miss Doecker and Miss Margaret Reitzner won top honors for Monday's work. It was reported. The team brought in 14 memberships.

Miss Doecker and Miss Kronschnabel led their division to the top place for Monday's campaigning, with 39 memberships and 1,324 points. The Brown-Williams division was second and the Werner-Blum division third.

It was pointed out at last night's meeting that the Rev. Mr. Blum is the first leader in the history of the "Y" whose division has finished at the top three times. Werner has earned the same honor twice.

At the end of the campaign, the workers had brought in a total valuation of $11,479. Adding to this present members, dormitory members, advance gifts and national firms yet to be secured, the total is $13,817 which is $1,183 short of the $15,000 goal.

Mercury Slides To New Low Mark

Fair and Warmer Weather Is Predicted Tonight, Wednesday

Winter weather swept into Wisconsin last night but government meteorologists predicted the visit would be brief, issuing a forecast of fair and warmer weather tonight and Wednesday.

If you're wondering why it was hard to keep warm last night, maybe the fact that the mercury slid to 26 degrees had something to do with it. The mark lowest of the fall season, was recorded at 6 o'clock this morning at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company. The highest level during the 24-hour period preceding 9 o'clock this morning was 45 degrees at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Temperatures in the state today ranged from a minimum of 19 at Park Falls to 32 in Milwaukee. Among low points were Wausau, La Crosse and Superior-Duluth with 20. Madison, 22 and Green Bay 27. Park Falls was the coldest spot in the country. Highest temperature in the nation yesterday was at Phoenix, Ariz., with 2 degrees, according to the Associated Press.

The thermometer on the roof of the Post-Crescent building registered 41 degrees early this afternoon.

Manslaughter Charge In Everson Shooting

Dodgeville, Wis.—District Attorney George Larkin today issued a warrant charging Mrs. Emma Steiner, 37, with third degree manslaughter in the shooting of Herman Everson, 49, farm hand and escaped inmate of the Vernon county asylum.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace T. H. Arthur, Mrs. Steiner provided $3,000 bond and a hearing was scheduled for Oct. 24.

Mrs. Steiner, who surrendered last Tuesday following the shooting had been at Liberty under $2,000 on charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm. Everson died Saturday, and a coroner's jury found yesterday that he came to his death as the result of shots fired by Mrs. Steiner.

35-Year-Old Elephant Killed in Los Angeles

Los Angeles—An-Poison and rifle bullets were used to kill "Billy Sunday," a 6,000-pound bull circus elephant which appeared before millions of spectators.

The 35-year-old Billy was put to death at Lincoln park zoo because he had long been violent and unmanageable.

He was owned by Louis M. Meitus, Los Angeles and Chicago manufacturer. Meitus bought him and other circus elephants in Sheboygan, Wis., 18 months ago when circus "folded" there. Since then, Meitus has provided free circus performances for under-privileged children.

DOUGHNUT ART

With Halloween just around the corner—Halloween and doughnuts being almost synonymous terms I am sure an article on doughnuts should be interesting.

Two or three decades ago every good cook knew how to make doughnuts, and some of these had several varieties of these delicious confections to give them. Today we make a batch of doughnuts once in a great while or buy a dozen at the delicatessen as a special treat for the family, but doughnut making seems to be a lost art in many households. And it is a great pity for doughnuts are so good and may be served as a welcome change from cake, waffles and hot cakes.

One of the most important rules for making doughnuts so they will be tender, crisp and crumbling as they should be, is to have the dough just soft enough to handle, too much flour will make them tough and stiff. The fat in which they are fried should be just hot enough to color a cube of bread a rich, golden brown in one minute. When they are done they should be drained on brown paper to rid them of surplus fat, stood in rows on their plump sides to cool, then put away in a stone crock or a tin box with a tightly fitting cover.

Sour Cream Doughnuts

6 egg yolks 1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sour cream 1/2 teaspoon soda
1 cup sugar 1/4 teaspoon cream
2 cups cake flour of tartar
2 1/2 cups bread 1/2 teaspoon
1/2 cup butter 1/2 cup milk
Beat egg yolks and sugar and beat thoroughly. Add cream and flour sifted with the dry ingredients and mix well. Chill in refrigerator before rolling. Roll lightly on well floured board 1/4 inches thick, cut with doughnut cutter and fry in deep, hot fat. Makes about 3 dozen doughnuts.

Chocolate Doughnuts

2 eggs 1/4 cup sugar
1/2 cup shortening 1/2 cup sour milk
2 squares choco-1/2 teaspoon late melted vanilla
1 teaspoon cinna-1/2 teaspoon soda
mon 3/4 to 4 cups flour

Many Fail to Capitalize On Finesse

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Incredible as it may seem, thousands of players do not appreciate the full meaning and potentiality of so simple a device as a finesse. When they have the A Q x in one hand and small cards in the other, they realize, of course, that they must try to win a trick with the queen by leading toward the combination, but when they have Q x x opposite A x, they often overlook the fact that if the missing king is located favorably, they can cash the ace, lead toward the queen and, after the king is out of the way, preserve the queen for future use. In short, they are guilty of a horrible error such as the declarer made in the following hand:

Both sides vulnerable.

West opened his fourth highest club. East won with the ace and, deciding that there was not much to be gained from a spade shift, sent back a low club. Declarer won, discarding a heart from dummy, then to his considerable relief, dropped the outstanding king and jack of trumps in one lead. His next play, however, proved fatal, and more-over, proved that he had a great deal to learn about the game of bridge. He led a heart and put in dummy's queen. East pounced on this with the king and returned a spade (A heart return would have been equally sound). Obviously, declarer now had to lose a spade trick, and with it his contract.

Declarer had thrown out of the window exactly half his chance for success in this hand. The heart finesse most certainly should not have been taken when it was taken and, indeed, if the proper technique had been brought to bear, there would have been no need ever to take it. This was the queen. If the queen in West's hand (as it actually was) the queen would be preserved for a heart discard. The vital point was that this spade finesse had to be taken first. If it went wrong, the heart finesse always could be tried later. If, however, the heart finesse were taken first and it went wrong, no good use could be made of a favorable spade position, except of the marvellous fall of the spade king on the ace.

Experts, and indeed most average players, have no need to study this sort of situation, but I commend it to those readers who realize they still have a great many things to learn.

THE HOME GARDENER

by EDWIN H. PERKINS

If you want something different for your bulb garden, try camassias. While they are bulbous in root formation, they are more strictly called herbaceous perennials. Unfortunately, they are seldom seen in the average garden and their rare beauty has been confined to a few distant fastnesses.

Camassias grow from two to three feet high, producing flower stalks of large proportions, topped with large graceful blooms which are hyacinthlike in formation and which, again like the hyacinth, may extend for some distance down the flower stalk.

The bulbs, which are now available at many seed stores, should be planted four to six inches between the surface of the soil and the top of the bulb in fairly heavy loam where moisture is abundant. As a plant for the pool-side or in the bog garden, camassias have few equals.

The predominant color of camassias is blue, although some species, which come from British Columbia, vary in color from blue to white.

Add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of lemon juice to each cup of heavy cream to hasten the whipping process.

Elderly Man Must be Careful In His Selection of a Wife

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am a man 60 years old. Have reared a family. Put my children through high school. Lived a steady, sober, industrious life. But I have never had any affection from my wife or children. There is no other woman in the case nor ever has been but now I am ready to quit my family as I can see how during all these years they have just used me for a meat ticket. My earning power is diminishing and there are not many years left in which I can make money, so before that time arrives who should I not marry some good woman who would be a real wife and helpmate to me in my latter years? I honestly believe that I have tried to do everything a man could do to make my home a happy one, but the situation there is hopeless and there is nothing more that I can do. Before I make this decision I would like for you to tell me just what you think of it. AGE.

Answer:
If, as you say, you have done your full duty by your family; if you have worked hard to support your wife and children and they have repaid you only with neglect and coldness, no one can blame you, now that they are grown and on their feet and your obligation to them is fulfilled, for seeking happiness for yourself.

Certainly thirty or forty years of loneliness and lovelessness is a long martyrdom for any one to bear, yet many men and women who, like you, have made unfortunate marriages, go through this for the sake of their children. They are among the unsung heroes of the world. Surely no suffering can be harder to endure than having to toil for those who give you neither thanks nor appreciation, than having to stifle the cry of one's heart for love and tenderness; than having to endure daily and hourly, year after year, the moods, the tempers, the barbed insults of those who made life a torment to one.

Every now and then we hear of an old couple getting a divorce and we vaguely wonder why they do it, why those who have been together so long do not keep together for the remainder of their life journey, which in nature cannot be much longer? But that is the very reason they part. They have stood all they can bear. Their endurance is at an end. And just because they have not long to live they want to know a little peace, a little rest, a little freedom before they die. A little happiness, a little love, if so be it that God is good enough to send it to them.

But how can they find what they have missed and so desire? How can you find it? That's the question that neither they nor any one else can answer. You are 60. That is late to begin the search for romance. Perhaps it is too late for you to love or to inspire love in woman's heart. No young girl could fall in love with a man old enough to be her grandfather. And no woman past 50 is any more flattery than you are.

So if you are looking for the romance and the dreams and the ardors of youth, you will not find them in a second marriage. But you may find friendship and companionship and somebody to nurse your rheumatism and sit by the fireside with you, and to whom you can say "don't you remember?"

But it is necessary for a man who marries in his sixties to be far more careful in picking out his mate than he is in selecting one in his twenties. He is not as adaptable as he once was and neither is she. So he should be very sure that he does not let himself be inveigled to the altar by some woman who is out looking for some one to support her. You have made one mistake in marriage. Watch your step.

I offer this for your consolation: In the end I think that your children will come back to you. After they have got out from under their

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

Repeatedly I have pointed out that psychology is the basis of success in all phases of modern life. Even an admirable dentist must fill the chair before he fills the tooth. If you didn't study psychology in school, at least make it your hobby now, for you have a psychology laboratory with you whenever you meet another person.

CASE O-174: Thurlow M., aged 27, is an enterprising young dentist.

"I opened up an office just a year ago," he said to me, after a recent address I had given his state society, "and I want to tell you that psychology is certainly about 90 percent of a young man's need when he starts into practice."

"Our dental schools teach us how to fill the tooth, all right. Most of my classmates are very good men in a technical sense. But as you mentioned in your address, the colleges don't teach us how to fill the dental chair."

"And that certainly is our first problem. We can't work on a patient's teeth until we get somebody into the chair."

"Your daily column has been worth a year in college, at the very least, and I am not saying this as an obvious means of joining your Compliment club, either."

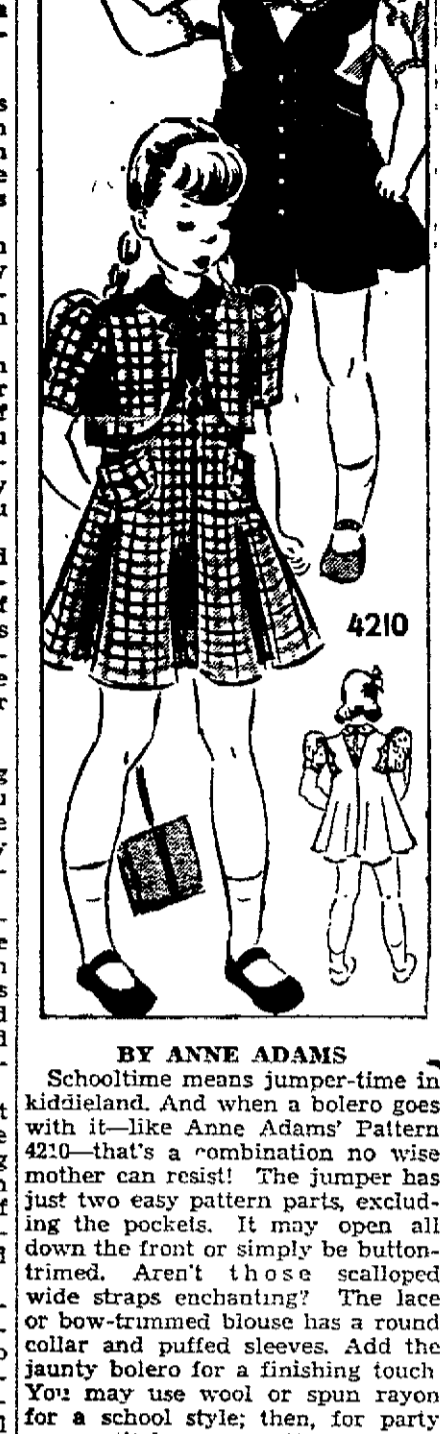

"Dr. Crane, why don't they teach more applied psychology in our colleges and especially in our professional schools?"

DIAGNOSIS: Right now I wish to take time out and tell you read-ers that the American dentists are on their toes when it comes to psychology.

Thurlow is right in saying they didn't get such training in their college years. But they are availing themselves of every opportunity to glean such valuable knowledge from other sources.

In the last year alone, I have corresponded with 1,542 American dentists, which is a pretty good percentage of the 60,000 dentists in this

JUMPER STYLE

BY ANNE ADAMS

Schooltime means jumper-time in kiddleland. And when a bolero goes with it—like Anne Adams' Pattern 4210—that's a combination no wise mother can resist! The jumper has just two easy pattern parts, excluding the pockets. It may open all down the front or simply be button-trimmed. Aren't those scalloped wide straps enchanting? The lace or bow-trimmed blouse has a round collar and puffed sleeves. Add the jaunty bolero for a finishing touch. You may use wool or spun rayon for a school style; then, for party wear, stitch up a taffeta jumper.

Pattern 4210 is available in children's sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 6, jumper, takes 18 yards 54 inch fabric; blouse, 1 yard 35 inch fabric; jumper and bolero, 23 yards 35 inch fabric.

Send your order to Appleton Post-Crescent Pattern Department, 243 West 17th St., New York, N. Y. Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Child Without Playthings Apt to Pilfer Other's Toys

BY ANGELO PATRI

Tommy was four years old, sturdy and full of fun. He had no brothers or sisters, and his love of company. He usually played in the yards of the neighbors who had several children. About his age. Every time he went home he took something that belonged to the other children and put it in his yard. At first he did not hide his loot, but after he had been made to return it, in person, he was careful to keep it under cover for a while.

His father and mother were frightened. They feared he might become an out and out thief; and then, too, the neighbors did not like the idea at all, and were beginning to frown on him when he arrived all set to play.

"Why did you take Phil's barrow?" Now tell me the truth. I want to know what makes you want to do such things. You knew it was not yours. Why did you take it? You knew better because you hid it under the porch. Tell me why you do this? I want you to be a good boy, not a bad one who steals. Nobody is going to like you, or want you around if you do this. Phil's mother will not let you play with him any more."

"Yes, she will, too. I'll take it back to him."

"No, she won't. She telephoned me just now and asked me if you had Phil's barrow. I asked you and you told me No. Then I found it where you had hidden it. I had to tell Phil's mother I had it and she said you could not go over to play there any more. Now what? Do you see what you are doing to yourself?"

"I'll take it back to him. I didn't mean to keep it."

Back Tommy went, all contrition, apparently. The next day he took Phil's ball and Harold's sand truck. "Why do you do such things?" cried his exasperated mother. "Cause I want to," said the little robber, tears streaming down.

The doctor listened gravely to the end of the chapter. "Hm, he is the only child? Doesn't play much at home, does he? I'd like to go over and look at his play yard, if I might?"

The yard was bare of playthings save for a two-seated swing. "Does he swing much?"

"When somebody comes to swing with him, but they soon get tired and they go to some other yard."

"Hm. What else does he have to play with?"

"O, he has a ball, not much else. You see he doesn't use the things. He just goes away to play. And, to tell the truth, I have been so busy

My Neighbor Says—

When red spiders appear on cactus plants causing yellow spots to appear on the plants dash plants with cold water. If they do not soon disappear put half a cup of sulphur dust in a quart of water let stand for two days, pour off the water and sprinkle plants with it.

Eggs contain minerals, tissue-building substances and vitamins. Consequently, it's a good plan to serve at least one egg a day to children. They may be creamed, poached, baked, made into omelets or mixed with creamed foods. They also may be made into custards or other simple puddings.

After A Man's Heart

by JEAN RANDALL

Yesterday, Atkins, the dishonest foreman who rented Tim the Carroll's ranch for September, has rented it again for October. The new arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. Hunt, and daughter Maudie May, whose appetite knows no bounds.

Chapter Eight
The Siege

LONE in the dining room, Tim and Buff were joined by Mrs. Webb.

"Should I take her up some soda?" asked the anxious cook. "Or maybe you'd best get Dr. Westland out right away." She added the exclamation she employed only in times of crisis. "My goodness-graciousness!"

Tim mopped his forehead. "I shall burst myself, just thinking about it."

"Oh, don't!" Buff pleaded. "I feel absolutely suffocated. Still, her parents didn't seem alarmed. And she hasn't put on all that poundage nibbling on a lamb chop and pineapple diet. Tim, I'm sorry to leave you alone, but I've got to get some exercise—at once! I shall take a long tramp—climb Audubon and Long's and Pike's, perhaps."

He caught her arm. "No, you don't! I can get about pretty well on these infernal crutches and I'm going to be left alone here with that—anaconda. It might occur to her to come down for a mid-afternoon snack. Take me along, Buff, of your charity, Mrs. Webb."

The cook had sunk into a chair and was staring at the table. "I wouldn't a-believed it if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes! Four chickens, and a good size they was, too—besides all them vegetables and things. You sure ain't going to make money off these boarders, Miss Buff."

"No," the girl assented. "I sure ain't! Webby about supper now—I hope you heard me say supper!"

Webby nodded, her eyes glazing as she made a mental inventory of the food consumed. "I ain't no murderer, Miss Buff."

The Hunts were still in possession when Buff and Tim returned late in the afternoon. Mrs. Webb reported that there had been several calls for Tim from Boulder. He applied himself to the telephone and came away, looking troubled.

"We can do nothing about it this afternoon, Buff. Worse than that, it looks as if Hunt has a real case, if you try to put him out. He rented the ranch in good faith, as he says, from a man who was, to all intents and purposes, your father's legally

Dear Mrs. Post: Would half-past five be too early for the men in a wedding to wear dinner clothes? They haven't good plain suits and their sack coats and striped trousers are, they feel, wrong. But isn't it wrong to wear evening clothes in the day time?

Answer: The 5:30 wedding is a very puzzling hour, because six o'clock is supposed to be the earliest at which men may wear evening clothes. The interpretation of the rule is usually this: If it is a very big church wedding followed by a small reception, they wear formal day clothes. If the wedding is to be very small, followed by a large reception, they wear evening clothes (obviously because the reception will not start until after six o'clock).

A Table Rule.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it improper to unwind coffeecakes or cinnamon buns to eat them? You know how they are made in coils. I have been told this is incorrect although I honestly can't see why it is wrong and yet sinking into a cinnamon bun—sometimes even up to the nose—is right.

Answer: It is never right to bite into an enormous bun or roll or huge slice of bread. But don't crumble it; break off a two or three-bite sized piece, and then break off another.

Officer to Enlist Army Recruits at Armory Oct. 25-26

About 3,000 Men Being Sought in Area to Fill Vacancies

An officer and 15 men will be at the Armory Oct. 25 and 26 to take recruits for the United States army, according to Colonel H. Clay M. Supple, commander of the Wisconsin military area.

Appleton is one of six cities in which temporary recruiting quarters will be set up in eastern Wisconsin. The others are Sheboygan, Oct. 18-20; Manitowish, Oct. 21-22; Green Bay, Oct. 23-24; Oshkosh, Oct. 27-28; and Fond du Lac, Oct. 29-30.

Colonel Supple said that reserve officers in the area have been requested to obtain recruits and send them to the six cities. Similar campaigns are being conducted in Michigan and Illinois which with Wisconsin comprise the 6th army corps area.

About 3,000 men will be recruited from the area to fill vacancies in various branches of the service. To be accepted for military service an applicant must meet the following conditions: able-bodied, strong, active and free from disease; between 18 and 35 years of age for a first enlistment, and able to speak, read and write the English language. For the air corps and certain other branches, a high school diploma is required. Men under 5 feet, 4 inches in height and 115 pounds in weight cannot be accepted.

Major A. O. Kuehnstedt, recruiting officer, is making arrangements for the recruiting headquarters in Appleton.

Waupaca Residents Hunt in South Dakota

Waupaca — Dr. A. M. Christoffer and O. E. Peterson left last week for points in South Dakota on their annual hunting trip. They are to be joined early this week by Lester Laux who left with Ernest Sader of Fremont. Monday morning for the same destination.

Dr. A. H. Chandler purchased the Frank Hausman home on Jefferson street Saturday and will occupy it about the middle of November.

The Misses Dorothy Gates, Pearl Weise, Clare McGregor and Estelle Rhinehart spent Saturday in Milwaukee where they saw "The Taming of the Shrew."

Man Confesses Arson, Sentence Is Withheld

Chilton—Edward Pendergast, 48, town of Harrison, Calumet county, pleaded guilty of arson when he appeared before Judge Henry P. Kuehn in circuit court Monday afternoon. Sentence was withheld for 60 days pending observation at the state hospital, Oshkosh, of Pendergast, who said he was intoxicated at the time.

Pendergast admitted setting fire to an unoccupied, half-completed dwelling at the intersection of Wilson and Jefferson streets, south of the Appleton city limits. The building was owned by Pendergast's son, Colon R. Pendergast, 20.

middle of the day, as I told you. Just a snack at night."

"No more food?" The Hunts were plainly incredulous. "But this is outrageous! Maudie May's hungry," her father announced as one explaining that his child had been on a forced starvation diet for days. "She'll be ill if she doesn't have solid food."

"I'm sorry! I thought this morning you wouldn't like staying here. Mr. Corliss," went on Buff primly, "has a bad case of dyspepsia—" she refused to see his start of angry surprise—"and Dr. Westland prefers that he have a light meal at night. I have to watch my own diet, so that's all right. I've a tendency to stoutness," said Buff, who was as slim as one of the aspen trees now shaking its golden leaves outside the window. She led the way into the living room, and the Hunts followed disconsolately behind her.

"There, petty, there! I've just remembered!" Mrs. Hunt lumbered awkwardly to her feet. "There's almost half that box of chocolates left. I'll go up and—" She stopped, sending a suspicious look about the room. "Perhaps you'd better come upstairs with me," she finished.

At bedtime Buff was conscious of the pangs of hunger. Dinner had gone practically uneaten, supper had been one cracker and the bowl of bluish milk. Her healthy young body cried out for sustenance. She put on her bathrobe and soft-soled slippers, crept down to the kitchen. A light burned there.

"I thought you'd be down," Tim assured her. "Webby, bless her, apparently thought so, too. Lookit!" He pointed proudly to the kitchen table. A large frosted cake glistened; half a baked ham was yielding up its savoriness under his sharp knife. A glass pitcher of milk showed blobs of cream.

"Fall to!" he bade her. They ate in companionable silence.

Departure

The siege lasted but two days. Tim, after another talk with his friend Johnson, convinced Buff that it was far better to make the ranch an uncomfortable abiding place for the resolute Hunts, than to resort to law in the matter.

"It's not important enough for that," he argued. "And what is more, I think Hunt is staying more out of sheer obstinacy than because he wants the place. Let me manage this for you, Buff, and we'll see their retreating backs in a day or two."

With Mrs. Webb he struggled for a couple of meals, then finding that her outraged soul could not be brought to settling the kind of table he ordered, he informed her she had a bad case of lumbago and must stay in bed until further notice.

The farce turned into abrupt tragedy as far as meals were concerned. Whatever else Buff had picked up in the course of her nomadic life with her parents, a knowledge of cookery was not included. She struggled with grim convincings in the kitchen, burning, under-cooking, producing biscuits that would have made Webby actually ill if Tim had not prudently hidden what was left of them.

"This," announced Mr. Hunt the second day, "is unbearable!" He flung his napkin down and glared at his plate. On it reposed a bit of tough and scorched beefsteak; a potato which had baked so long it was shriveled within its skin; green beans which were dry and flavorless. "If this Webb woman is actually sick, why don't you get another cook?"

"It's really Miss Carroll's affair, isn't it?" Tim said gently. "We can hardly advise her about her own household."

"It's a plot to drive us away!" Hunt snorted. "Well, it won't succeed, of that you may be sure. I've paid for a month's board and room here and a month I shall have."

"I really am sorry about dinner, Mr. Hunt," Buff nursed a burn on her wrist the while she gazed with genuine shame at the ill-cooked food. "I tried my very best! Mrs. Webb said even I could bake potatoes, but it seems not."

Maudie May settled the question. "You make her give you money back, Pa, and we'll leave this afternoon. I'm hungry!" Tears came into her small green eyes. "I haven't had a decent thing to eat since that first meal. Are you going to let us all starve to death just for the principle of the thing? I don't care a hoot about principles," she said earnestly, "but I care a lot about us having dinner that somebody knows how to cook. Make her give you back all the money," she added. "We haven't had ten cents' worth of decent food since the cook got sick."

An hour later Maudie May came downstairs ahead of her parents. Buff and Tim sat in silence in the living room. Tim openly triumphant, Buff struggling with an attack of conscience. Still, she had given Mr. Hunt a check covering the entire amount he had paid Atkins!

Maudie May, well fed, was one person; deprived of an appetizing food for two days, she was another. It was her stomach rather than her heart which prompted her now.

"I know who you are," she said directly and simply to Tim. "You're the man that Iris DeMuth made a fool of. You used all your money and your partner's to buy up a lot of good-for-nothing land that she'd tricked you into thinking was a silver mine. You were engaged to her, and all the time she was playing around with somebody else. The papers were full of it. If I was Miss Carroll I'd sure watch my step with you!"

Waddled to the door, paused to fire a parting shot. "Everybody says you have a nerve to try to keep on in business right in Boulder after what happened! As if any company would trust you now!"

"Ready, Maudie May? Car's at the door. Goodbye," Miss Carroll. I shall see to it that this little transaction gets plenty of publicity."

Mrs. Hunt sailed through the hall without a glance at the two left behind. The sound of their car soon died, leaving the silence unbroken behind them.

Directors of Country Home Adopt Budget

OFFICERS from Oshkosh, Appleton, Neenah and Winneconne attended the supper meeting for members of the board of directors of the Children's Country home at Winneconne Sunday night at the home of Mrs. Charles Walsman, Oshkosh. Discussion of the current drive for funds, let by A. C. Gilbert, Neenah, president of the board, took up most of the business session. The Children's Country home anticipates that it will give approximately the same amount of service during the coming year as last. An average of about 50 children were cared for throughout the year. The budget adopted for the coming year is the same as that of last year, and it will be necessary for the board to raise $11,400 in gifts from its friends and members. The agency is not supported by the state, but receives its funds from local patrons. Organization of committees for the drive was completed at the meeting Sunday night. Mr. Gilbert will himself head the group, assisted by a steering committee including S. N. Pickard of Neenah, F. E. Thibodeau of Menasha and E. J. Dempsey of Oshkosh. Mrs. R. K. Schreiber will head the Oshkosh group and will have as her assistants Mrs. Charles Walsman, Mrs. George Owen, W. J. Campbell and R. K. Schreiber. Mrs. A. C. Gilbert will act as chairman for Neenah-Menasha, and will be assisted by Mrs. Carleton Smith, Mrs. D. K. Brown, Mrs. H. K. Babcock and A. C. Haseloff. Mrs. William Buchanan, Appleton, will head another committee. Working with her will be Mrs. L. S. Leighton, Neenah, and Mrs. George Banta, Jr., Neenah-Menasha. A. F. Schroeder will be Winneconne chairman. The financial drive began Monday and probably will be completed in three weeks.

Marie Schreiter Is Guest of Honor at Pre-Nuptial Party

Mrs. Walter Stark, 1425 S. Madison street, entertained 18 guests at a miscellaneous shower last night at her home in honor of Miss Marie Schreiter, who will be married Thanksgiving day to Robert Laux, New London. Court whist was played, and prizes were won by Mrs. Matt Grishaber, Miss Ruth Kapp and Miss Miriam Jacobs. Miss Irene Forster won the special prize. Miss Margaret Bechler, Chilton, entertained at a shower at her home Sunday evening in honor of Miss Lorraine Minahan, who will be married to James Oberbiller, Jr. Wednesday in Chilton. Guests were the Misses Maxine Klesner, Gertrude Moehn, Jeanette Tollefson, Glady Meyer, Dorothy Mayer, Beulah Gier, Geraldine Mayer, Delma Stumpenhorst, Janice Dhein, Bernice Schmidt, Ione Kersten, Marie Casper, Lorraine Minahan and Jean Schultz. Games were played during the evening and a lunch was served by the hostess. The bride-to-be received a floor lamp from the group. Mrs. Paul Newman, 1316 N. Alvin street, entertained at a miscellaneous shower last night in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Campbell, whose marriage was announced last week. Hike Scheduled for Group of Y Members

About 20 "friendly Indians" of the Appleton Y. M. C. A. will go on a hike starting at 4:10 Wednesday afternoon, according to C. C. Bailey, boys' secretary. The group will cross the river, cook their own dinner and will be back at the Y building at 6:30. A swim in the Y pool will be taken for an hour.

Mrs. John A. Kluvin and children, Mary Ann and John Andrew, Milwaukee, will leave Wednesday after spending several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Roemer, 808 Memorial drive.

Twenty Initiated Into Quill, Scroll Society at School

Twenty journalists of Appleton High school were initiated Monday afternoon into the Edward Weismiller chapter of Quill and Scroll, international honor society for high school journalists. Miss Borghild Anderson, English instructor and adviser, presided at the candlelight ceremony. Seven of the group joined the international organization and received the official Quill and Scroll pin. They are Elaine Carlson, Norma Crow, Marne Graff, Margaret Lally, Joseph Marston, Beverley Olson and Barbara Small. Those who joined the local chapter are Margaret Bartman, Miriam Carlson, Carl Goldbeck, Jean Hoelzer, Janet Jones, Geraldine Manning, James Miller, Dele Notaras, Margaret Ruth, Jeanne Ruhling, Leslee Sherman, Elizabeth Wood and Marion Witt. Today Quill and Scroll has invited the faculty of the high school, members of the Clarion and Talisman staffs and American history classes to hear a lecture by Stephen Haboush, a native of Galilee. Mr. Haboush will discuss the British mandate in Palestine. The meeting is scheduled at 4 o'clock.

Shawano County Tenure Case May Have Wide Effect

Ultimate Decision Expected to Set Legal Precedent in State

SHAWANO—A court case involving the state teachers' tenure law as applied to 1-room schools was argued before County Judge C. B. Dilleit here Monday. The ultimate decision may set a legal precedent in tenure suits, since attorneys remarked that there has been no decision on a similar case. Attorneys for Mrs. Lillian Schmidt seek a writ of mandamus requiring the school board in town of Red Springs, District No. 2, to re-employ her as a teacher in the school, located about three miles north of Gresham in Shawano county. The school board, including Harry Shepard, clerk; Frank Stoehr, treasurer; and Jack Miller, director, argue that the teacher had lost her right to tenure because of an invalid license and that the legislature's recent action amending the law to exclude 1-room schools automatically applies in the case. After taking of testimony and brief verbal arguments, Judge Dilleit requested briefs of the arguments before making a decision. Counsel agreed to submit them within 15 days.

Married Women

Mrs. Schmidt, a Shawano county teacher for the last 25 years, taught in the Red Springs school for 16 years, including the 1933-39 school term. This year the board decided to bar married women with "absorbed husbands" and did not renew the contract. On June 17, it is argued, Mrs. Schmidt was granted a teaching certificate for the current term by A. L. Fox, county superintendent of schools. A new state law requires that since July 1, 1939, certificates can be granted only by the state department of education. Issues to be decided are whether the legislative amendment to the tenure law, excluding 1-room schools from the law, can be applied to the plaintiff's tenure, and whether she had a valid certificate to teach—a necessity for making proper application for re-employment during the current term. Plaintiff's attorneys contend the original tenure law, passed in 1937, set up a contractual relationship between teacher and school board, and that exclusion of 1-room schools now constitutes impairment of obligation of Mrs. Schmidt's contract, and was consequently unconstitutional; that exclusion of 1-room schools from the law after all schools had been included makes the law "class legislation"; and that the certificate issued in June by Fox was valid under a specific provision of the law requiring issuance of certificates by the state. The defense responded that since Mrs. Schmidt's previous certificate expired on July 5, 1939, a new one issued in June 1939, was an attempt at circumvention and the new one void; that the amendment to the tenure law must apply in the case, which involves a 1-

High School Sophomores Will Present Talent Show Thursday

Ten acts of vaudeville ranging from tap dancing to dramatic reading are in the process of production at Appleton High school. All the performers are sophomores, who will present their talent show for the high school assembly Thursday afternoon. The program is a special project of Curtin Call, dramatic society, and each act is being coached by members of the organization. Miss Ruth McKennan, head of the speech department and adviser to the group, is directing. The important part of master of ceremonies has gone to Ralph Eucene, who is being coached by Marjorie Mader in the art of introduction and story telling. David Bliss is directing two acts, a vocal solo by Theodora Slater and a violin solo duet by Betty Stevens and Margaret Rohan. Rose Mary Nickash will accompany at the piano. Gale Beck and Lois Schreiter are working on a routine for a tap dance number under the direction of Cole Speck. David Gellaher will be at the piano. A playlet written especially for the talent show by Ethel Rindel will be presented by Joyce Kessler, Mary Lou Collins, Edward Blackman and Miss Rindel. Jeanne Ruhling and James Sherry are coaching. Francis Speel will prove his versatility by offering a ventriloquist and harmonica act. Ardree Peters and Robert Otto are coaching. Vocal Soloist Leon Griesbach is assisting Patricia Snow in preparing her vocal solo, and Miss Speel is helping Ruby Loos with a tap dance routine. Miss Slater also is on the program as a dramatic reader. She will present a selection in Negro dialect. Lincoln Scheurle and William Cherkasky are working out a novelty stunt with the assistance of Donald Smith. Charles Benjamin has something new to offer in the line of a piano-vocal act. His coach is Griesbach. In tune with their contemporaries, Miss Rindel and Kessler Collins are going to show how jitterbug is done. Sherry is their coach. The first series of talent programs was presented by the classes at the high school last year, and these vaudeville shows are rapidly becoming a tradition. The juniors are scheduled to appear next, while the seniors will climax the variety programs with the senior vocal, Edward Blackman and Miss Rindel, Jeanne Ruhling and James Sherry.

GIRLS' CHORUS ACTIVE AT FREEDOM HIGH SCHOOL

Several members of the Freedom High school girls' chorus are shown above with the sponsor, Mrs. Ben Schraml, commercial course teacher. The chorus meets twice each week and provides entertainment between acts of school plays. The group also appears on special day programs at the school. Miss Kathleen Maulick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Maulick, Kaukauna, one of the two pianists, is shown seated at the piano. Others, left to right, are: Miss Evelyn Kieffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Kieffer, route 2, Kaukauna, the other pianist, Mrs. Schraml; Miss Betty Delafosse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Delafosse, route 1, Kaukauna, assistant librarian; and Miss Carol Krueger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Krueger, route 2, Kaukauna, librarian. Gun Stolen 13 Years Ago Finds Its Owner

HARLINGEN, TEX.—(P)—Thirteen years ago, while Walter Martin of Port Isabel, Tex., was in Denver, Colo., participating in the Great Western handicap, a valuable gun was stolen from him. He reported the theft to police. Denver officers just informed him the gun had been recovered in a pawn shop and was being returned to him. Martin said the pawn shop ticket indicated the gun had been pledged for a loan made to a Wyoming man who apparently had taken good care of the weapon because it was in excellent condition when it was returned to its legal owner.

Foolproof Platform For 1940 Politicians

HOOQUIAM, WASH.—(P)—Wags, noting claims of a Hoquiam corporation concerning tennis tables it manufactures, point out the tables would make excellent platforms for political candidates. "The tables are so strong they will support a ponderous man. He could somersault on it without danger. The top is built in two parts and the planks can be easily shifted. Also, the tables cannot be affected by hot air."

Hitch-Hiker Spreading New Economic Doctrine

VANCOUVER, WASH.—(P)—Roland C. Casad of Covina, Calif., is so certain he has a sound national recovery plan that he's hitch-hiking across the nation to expostulate it to the public. He'll begin thumbing his way east as soon as he finishes a Pacific coast campaign. Basically, his plan calls for retirement of all government bonds and installation of a system of depreciating currency, plus the payment of $200 a month until death to all persons over 50 years of age.

His File Contains, of All Things, Perfume

NORMAN, OKLA.—(P)—Having discovered a way to place odors on paper and make them stay there, Dr. Ralph Bientang, professor at the University of Oklahoma, makes a hobby of collecting scents. He has more than 250 of them, gathered from all parts of the world, on file. They include such rare fragrances as the scent from oil of rose and neroli; oil distilled from bitter orange.

Most Students of Birds Find Warblers Hardest to Identify

BY CLARA HUSSONG

A letter from a reader in Brussels came to me a short time ago telling about a small bird which for the last four September has been visiting the correspondent's garden and feeding on the Concord grapes. The small size of the bird, its green and yellow coloring, its lively flitting and its high-pitched chirping all suggested a warbler but as this group of birds is supposed to be almost entirely insectivorous I did not think the bird described could be a member of the warbler family.

Just about the time I was puzzling over this bird's identity I came upon a flock of myrtle warblers feeding in a weedy lot right in town. At first I couldn't believe my eyes. What could this flock of insect-eaters be doing pecking away at the dried seed clusters of Russian thistle, pigweed, and ragweed? However, the streaked olive-brown backs, the patches of yellow above the tails, the streaked breasts with the faintly yellow side patches told me that these certainly were myrtle warblers in winter plumage.

If one species of warblers deviates from its insect diet, why not another. I decided and began to look through my bird books for a grating warbler. As the measurements given me by the writer from Brussels were decidedly small even for a warbler, I omitted the larger members of the family and searched through the descriptive text for a small species with a greenish and yellow winter plumage.

Found Tennessee Warblers

The book which gave me the answer was Pearson's "Birds of America" (Garden City Publishing Company). Under "Tennessee Warbler," I found the following notes: "The food of this species is of particular interest because it is one of the few warblers which have proved to be destructive to fruits in a peculiar way. The Tennessee Warbler is known to puncture ripe or ripening grapes and to suck the juice, thereby causing the decay of the berries so punctured and attracting yellow-jackets, bees and other nectar-loving insects so that whole clusters are sometimes ruined. This work was long attributed to Catbirds, Orioles, and various other species, but has now been definitely fixed on the present species and cannot be denied. Doubtless in some cases the damage done is considerable, but usually the birds are so scarce that the amount of fruit damaged is insignificant."

The author states further that the Tennessee warbler as well as others, sometimes feeds on the berries of poison sumach and poison ivy. The seeds are expelled whole and the bird is then a means of scattering the seeds of noxious shrubs but because of the immense numbers of insect pests which it devours it is on the whole a beneficial bird.

Nest In Canada

In looking through my bird record chart I find that I have the Tennessee warbler listed as arriving here for the past two years on May 22, and a few days earlier in 1937. In the margin I have added the note, "Loud chirping song," and I remember that last spring when they appeared to be unusually numerous during migration I could hear them chirping a block away. Very few remain in the northernmost parts of the United States, most of them go on to Canada where they nest in balsam and spruce woods.

I checked up on the diet of the myrtle warbler also but found no mention of its feeding on weed seeds. The book did mention however that it is very fond of myrtle berries or "bayberries," as they are called, hence its name. This species is still about and if the weather remains mild may be seen until the end of the month. Most of the calls I have had in the past few days have been inquiries about the myrtle warbler. Quite a number mentioned its weed-seed diet.

A close relative of the myrtle warbler is the Audubon's warbler, a western species which resembles the myrtle so much that if your bird book hasn't an illustration of the eastern bird you may rely on the western bird's picture as a guide. The weed seed eating hab-

Shepherd To Talk

Stephen J. Gallean, Gallean shepherd, will give an illustrated lecture this evening at the church entitled "On Sacred Soil." Assisted by his wife and two helpers he will show movies of the Holy Land in natural color. "God is Love" was the subject of a sermon given by the Rev. Theodore Marth, pastor of Zion Lutheran church, Sunday morning at his church. Wesleyan Methodist church will have a prayer meeting Thursday night at the home of John C. Lang, W. E. Lise street.

"Doctrine of Atonement" was the subject of the lesson-sermon for Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist. The text included the following: "Every pang of repentance and suffering, every effort for reform, every good thought and deed will help us to understand Jesus' atonement for sin and aid its efficacy; but if the sinner continues to pray and repent, sin and be sorry, he has little part in the atonement,—in the at-one-ment with God,—for he lacks the practical repentance, which reforms the heart and enables man to do the will of wisdom."

Hear Dealers in Anti-Trust Trial

Tell of Practices of General Motors Finance Company

South Bend, Ind.—(P)—Government lawyers started the second week of the General Motors corporation anti-trust trial here by putting into the record more testimony of the corporation's efforts to gain business for the General Motors Acceptance corporation.

A federal jury and Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville, Ill., are trying the automobile firm, the GMAC, two other subsidiaries and 17 individuals on charges they conspired to force dealers to finance installment sales through the corporation's credit companies.

Seven defendants testified yesterday. General Motors officials had urged them repeatedly to give most of their financing business to the acceptance corporation.

Charles J. Phillips of Oak Park, Chicago suburb, said his Pontiac dealer's contract was cancelled March 4, 1938, after he had taken his retail sales paper to another company.

Clifton W. Majors, former Fort Worth, Tex., Chevrolet dealer, told the jury W. E. Holler, Chevrolet sales manager and a defendant, had told him he would not let any dealers do business with any firm except GMAC.

Phillips said General Motors men gave him a sales talk for GMAC at least once a month. He said he cut down on his dealings with GMAC because that company required that he assume responsibility for unpaid balances on repossessed automobiles.

College of Surgeons Plans To Train 500 Men Each Year

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Editor Philadelphia—Plans to train 500 new American surgeons each year, to give the average-income man the highly-skilled surgery which has belonged largely to the rich and the indigent, were announced today by the American College of Surgeons. The plan is a three-year system of super-training in surgery which it is hoped will ultimately raise the crop of completely-trained new surgeons yearly to 600 or more and spread them into the rural districts instead of having only enough to concentrate in the cities. The college announced the names of 381 hospitals, including five in Canada, which have been approved for this kind of training. The move sets up an official medical standard in surgery, to replace voluntary training methods of the past which produced many surgical supermen but at the same time others who were not fully-trained. Three years study of surgical training problems preceded today's selection of the 381 institutions. This list is not fixed and it is expected to grow as the idea of better-trained surgeons spreads. One new principal of the training will be to broaden the surgical knowledge of men who specialize in restricted fields of surgery. The approved training hospitals include 153 government institutions, 188 community hospitals and 23 church hospitals. The college also today announced its approval of 2,720 hospitals, an all-time high.

Correct Constipation Before—Not After!

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of emergency relief. Why let yourself suffer those dull, lifeless days because of constipation, why bring on the need for emergency medicines, when there may be a far better way? That way is to KEEP regular by getting at the cause of the trouble. It's common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, a pleasant, nutritious, ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—goes straight to the cause by supplying the "bulk" you need. Eat this crunchy toasted cereal every day—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if you don't get all about constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Zephyr Gridders Face St. Norbert In League Contest

Menasha Team to Resume Conference Competition Sunday

Menasha — St. Mary High school gridders will resume their Fox Valley Catholic conference schedule Sunday afternoon when they face the St. Norbert College High school team at Butte des Morts field.

The Zephyrs, champions of the conference for the last two years, again are at the top of the pack for they scored a 27 to 7 victory over the St. Joseph Indian school of Keneshaw in the first conference game of the season.

Comparative scores indicate that the Zephyrs will repeat as champions of their conference. The Green Knights of St. Norbert were defeated by Chilton 25 to 0. St. John's of Little Chute has been beaten by Kimberly, St. Catherine's of Racine 27 to 0, and Edgewood academy of Madison 31 to 12.

Still Work To Do

The Zephyrs gained a full revenge for some past defeats Saturday when they defeated Neenah 19 to 0. The previous year the Zephyrs dropped a 14 to 13 decision to the Rockets.

Even though the Zephyrs won handily, the game indicated that Coach Robert Zuercher will have sufficient work cut out for this week. On many plays the Zephyr timing seemed ineffective and most of the backs apparently failed to drive hard for yards.

Two Zephyr players are on the injured list. They are William Resch and Cooman, both halfbacks. Resch bruised his hip in the first quarter of the Neenah game and saw little action. He was missed particularly on pass defense. Cooman again aggravated an ankle which he injured in pre-season practice and had bruised again in the Edgewood game.

Menasha Council To Meet Tonight

Expect Routine Business In Regular Session At City Hall

Menasha — A regular meeting of the common council will be held at 7:30 tonight at the Menasha city hall. Little business was held over from the last council session and the meeting tonight probably will be confined to routine business.

A report of the ordinance and resolution committee on changes in the ordinance which permits city officials to draw $15 per day and mileage while attending conventions is expected tonight. The matter was the subject of lengthy debate at the last meeting and a change in the ordinance was requested by Alderman Walter O'Brien.

Action on the request of the Richmond dry cleaners of Oshkosh for a license was withheld at the last meeting. Alderman William DeBruin was named to investigate the request further before the council acts.

The city has advertised six river lots, purchased by the park department, for sale. The bids are returnable up to 4 o'clock this afternoon at the city office. The city has reserved the right to reject bids on the lots to not less than $2,500. The lots are being sold to raise funds for the park department.

Knights to Observe Landing Day Thursday With Dinner, Program

Menasha — Landing day will be observed by Nicolet council, No. 1838, Knights of Columbus, at the regular meeting Thursday night at the lodge rooms. The Rev. Joseph Ahearn, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic church, will be the speaker at the program. A stag dinner in the club rooms will precede the observance.

Three prize-winning essays written by boys of St. Mary High school will be read at the program. The deadline for the essays was Monday and they are being judged by the committee which includes the Rev. Joseph Gluckstein, chaplain of Nicolet council; R. J. Fink, advocate, and Arnold J. Cane who is in charge of the contest. The authors of the three best essays will be guests of the council at the dinner.

The essay subject is "America, the bulwark of peace in a war-torn world." Medals also will be awarded to the winners.

Members of the committee planning the dinner are Joseph Mueller, lecturer; Dan Behnke, James Sennsberger, Dr. George Siasney and A. J. Cane.

Neenah School Journalists to Attend Parley

10 Students Named to Take Part in Conference at Madison

Neenah — Ten Neenah High school students, editors of the school's two publications, the Rocket and the Cub, will attend the twentieth annual Wisconsin high school editor's conference at Madison Saturday and Sunday.

Three teachers, who were faculty advisers for the publications, also will attend. They are Miss Ruth Quarna and Al Poellinger of the Cub and Marvin Olsen of the Rocket.

Editors of the newspaper staff who will attend are Jack Ward, Gertrude Krautkramer, Florence Cole, Betty Borenz, Harland Hesselman, and Kathleen Hutchins, while the yearbook editors who will attend are Rose Dowling, James Webb, Kenneth Ginnow, and Jack Williams. Another member of the Rocket staff also will attend, but he hasn't been named as yet.

Features of the conference will be a dance Saturday night following the banquet in the Great Hall of the Memorial Union and the assembly in the theatre.

An enlarged program of roundtable discussion for editors of yearbooks as well as individual conference and roundtables for news editors are being planned.

The roundtables for the news editors will include discussions on news writing, news sources, headlines, makeup, copyediting, typography, sports, special features, circulation, advertising and photography.

Registration will be at 9 o'clock Saturday morning in the Memorial Union, and conferences will begin at 10 o'clock and continue throughout the day. Delegates will attend critical round tables Sunday morning, and a tour of the campus will be conducted at 10:30. A special issue of the Daily Cardinal, containing stories written by the delegates, will be issued.

Neenah School Journalists to Attend Parley

10 Students Named to Take Part in Conference at Madison

Neenah — Ten Neenah High school students, editors of the school's two publications, the Rocket and the Cub, will attend the twentieth annual Wisconsin high school editor's conference at Madison Saturday and Sunday.

Three teachers, who were faculty advisers for the publications, also will attend. They are Miss Ruth Quarna and Al Poellinger of the Cub and Marvin Olsen of the Rocket.

Editors of the newspaper staff who will attend are Jack Ward, Gertrude Krautkramer, Florence Cole, Betty Borenz, Harland Hesselman, and Kathleen Hutchins, while the yearbook editors who will attend are Rose Dowling, James Webb, Kenneth Ginnow, and Jack Williams. Another member of the Rocket staff also will attend, but he hasn't been named as yet.

Features of the conference will be a dance Saturday night following the banquet in the Great Hall of the Memorial Union and the assembly in the theatre.

An enlarged program of roundtable discussion for editors of yearbooks as well as individual conference and roundtables for news editors are being planned.

The roundtables for the news editors will include discussions on news writing, news sources, headlines, makeup, copyediting, typography, sports, special features, circulation, advertising and photography.

Registration will be at 9 o'clock Saturday morning in the Memorial Union, and conferences will begin at 10 o'clock and continue throughout the day. Delegates will attend critical round tables Sunday morning, and a tour of the campus will be conducted at 10:30. A special issue of the Daily Cardinal, containing stories written by the delegates, will be issued.

MovieLand Its People and Products

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood—After a month of wholesale throat-cutting in Hollywood—prompted by the curtailment of foreign markets—Filmville's executives are surprisingly cheerful. It begins to look as though the blood-letting might cure a lot of the industry's major ills.

Until the current scare started investigations, I don't think Hollywood's men-in-power realized just how much money they were throwing away.

This enforced survey brought out startling facts—there was hardly a company in the business that wasn't carrying costly excess baggage in the form of feather-brained relatives, incompetent yes-men and undeserving pensioners, many of whom hadn't done a day's work in more than a year. Every studio discovered that it was paying PLENTY for unnecessary duplication of effort. One of the bigger plants, for instance in checking up on the productivity of its writers (and Hollywood writers are paid nearly as much as stars) found that one-tenth of its scribes were carrying more than ninety percent of the total load.

It's regrettably true, of course that in clearing out its dead-wood, every studio has also sacrificed some valuable men. That was inevitable, for the great purge was carried out too quickly to be entirely fair. However, those good men who soon be back in good jobs, for the industry needs them. If the others—never get back, Hollywood will not be the loser. The annual savings effected should be enormous and with good pictures the rule now, instead of the exception, there's no reason why movies shouldn't soon be back on a paying basis.

PERSONAL OBSERVATIONS: If Virginia Field stops chatting for a long moment, be suspicious—she's probably asleep in her chair. Rearranging the other party's furniture is a passion with Hedy Lamarr. The effusive aplomb of elephantine Oliver Hardy is always a surprise. Studies in contrast: Arthur Treacher, who sits motionless for hours at a time, and Pat O'Brien, too nervous to sit at all. No two people in Hollywood look more unlike than Binnie Barnes, in slacks. No star is more critical of her own photographs than Loretta Young—who needs retouching less than most.

Sidney (Charlie Chan) Toler decided to pay off social obligations the other evening with an "in-character" Chinese dinner, and wanting to do the thing up brown, asked Sen Yung, the American-born Chinese who plays his No. 1 son, to come to the table to manage and supervise the cookery. The dinner, to put it mildly, was awful. Sid ventured a comment to Sen Yung. "I don't know much about Chinese cooking, but..." he started apologetically, when Mr. Yung interrupted. Neither do I—I never eat the stuff," he said brightly. "I got the recipe out of your cookbook!"

MEMORIES THAT BLESS AND BURN: When Wallace Reid, incensed by a critic's pessimistic comment on his marriage, wrote him this note: "My Dear Sir: Evidently you are not a married man, else you would know that the American people do not consider marriage a disgrace." When Mariene Dietrich, who professed to dislike Garbo, used to sneak into preview theaters, via the side doors, to devour her rival's pictures. When Buddy Rogers had a built-in safe in his car for the ladies' jewels.

Rural School Heads to Attend County Meeting

Menasha — Three rural school board members from the town of Menasha will attend the annual Winnebago county school board convention at the Little Theater of the Oshkosh State Teachers college Wednesday. They are Mrs. Clarence Peterson, director; Mrs. C. B. Anderson, clerk, and Mrs. William Frederick, treasurer.

Over 300 rural school board members and rural school teachers are expected to attend the meeting.

Contest Planned For Troop Patrols

Knot Tying Will Feature Competition Among Wooden Ware Scouts

Menasha—Plans for an inter-troop contest were made at the meeting of Boy Scout Troop No. 9, sponsored by the Menasha Wooden Ware, Monday night at Nicolet school. A feature of the contest, which will be conducted for four weeks, is knot tying. Announcements regarding the contest were made by James Flynn, scoutmaster.

Points will be given for attendance, uniform, inspection, patrol meetings, advancement, and patrol projects. Robert Tratz, assistant scoutmaster, gave a talk on knots and knot tying. A course of instruction in tying knots will be started at the next meeting.

Opening of the meeting Monday night was in charge of Sam Porto. Robert Beachkofski was the drill master for the evening. Beachkofski also had charge of inspection which was followed by patrol meetings.

A first aid contest was included in the game period as well as a wheelbarrow relay which was won by the No. 1 patrol. The contests were under the direction of Sam Porto and Robert Beachkofski. Closing was in charge of Robert Tratz.

Winnebago's Traffic Toll for This Year Higher Than in 1938

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh — Winnebago county's traffic accident record continued to grow last week, with the present month showing five accidents and one more fatality than for the corresponding period of 1938, according to Floyd L. Wright, county safety head.

Injuries due to highway accidents increased from 15 last October to 20 during the current month this year, while the number of damaged cars increased from 24 to 32, correspondingly.

To date this year there is an increase of 42 accidents, four more fatalities, 33 injured and 148 more cars damaged than for the same period last year.

Peter Clark Is Titlist In Horseshoe Tournery

Menasha — Peter Clark won the horseshoe championship of Menasha High school Monday afternoon when he defeated Lawrence Kaczmarek in the finals. In a two-out-of-three game series, Clark won the first game 21 to 17, dropped the second 8 to 21 and then won the final game 21 to 14.

Before going into the finals Clark defeated J. Hoffman, 21 to 5, in the semifinals. For the tournament were arranged by Leslie Ansgore, physical education instructor, and the tournament was conducted by Harold Roessler.

Traffic Officers to Convene at Oshkosh

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh — The Wisconsin Highway Traffic officers association will hold its semi annual meeting at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, Oct. 24, at the Winnebago county courthouse. Erving Still, captain of Winnebago highway police, is making arrangements for the session. Municipal Judge S. J. Luchsing, Oshkosh, will be one of the speakers. William J. Glasheen of the Outagamie county police, is president of the organization.

expected to attend the meeting. Miss Eva Monson, county superintendent of schools, will have charge. Speakers will include Miss Monson, J. F. Shaw, elementary school supervisor of the state department, the Rev. H. E. Mansfield, Allen, Wis., L. G. Holmes, Madison, landscape specialist, and Miss Katherine Weisman, county nurse.

Parade, Bonfire, Dance to Feature Neenah Homecoming

Neenah — Plans for the Neenah High school homecoming celebration, which will be held in conjunction with the Neenah-Shawano game here Saturday afternoon, were made at a meeting of the recently organized Pep club Monday afternoon.

The homecoming will get underway Friday afternoon. A pep meeting will be held at 2:30 and a pep parade will start at 7 o'clock in the evening. The parade will begin at Washington school and the high school band, under the direction of Lester Mals, will lead the parade. It will conclude at the Green where a large bonfire and pep rally will be staged.

The Northeastern Wisconsin conference will be followed by a dance in the evening. The dance, which will be in the gymnasium, also will be sponsored by the Pep club. Floyd Cummings is the faculty adviser.

Willis Clark Wins Neenah Trophy for Raising Pheasants

Neenah—Willis Clark has been awarded the Neenah High school Conservation club trophy for pheasant raising. It was reported today by Armin Gerhardt, adviser. Clark raised more than 30 pheasants on his farm south of Neenah. Charles Levick took second place. The club today received two bushels of wild rice which will be planted in swamps near Neenah. Russell Ruitven is in charge of the planting.

Another matinee dance will be staged by the club at 3:15 Friday afternoon in the gymnasium. Proceeds from these dances will be used to pay expenses of club projects. Anna Mariam Smith is in charge of the dance.

Gratiot Fire Burns 5 Business Buildings

Gratiot — R. J. Gille, chief of the Gratiot volunteer fire department, said he expected to hear today from the state fire marshal's office concerning an investigation launched into a disastrous fire here yesterday.

"We don't know what the cause was," Gille said.

Five business buildings were burned and another badly damaged. Gille said the fire, which began at 3 a. m., was not under absolute control until 5:45 p. m. and that water was used intermittently thereafter. No one was injured.

On the company grounds are 10 tanks holding 28,000 gallons each of naphtha, benzene and other highly explosive liquids, and two other 40,000 gallon tanks, one of which holds a chemical used in manufacture of TNT.

Broken Naphtha Pipe Endangers West Allis

Milwaukee — (P) — Hundreds of gallons of naphtha, released when a backing truck broke a pipe, poured onto the ground at the Wisconsin Mineral Spirits company plant late yesterday while West Allis police worked desperately to prevent an explosion.

It was 30 minutes before the police could bring company officials to the plant to find a shutoff valve. Meantime they roped off the area and used water to flush the liquid into sewers.

Bucky Walters Most Valuable

Pitching Star of Cincinnati Reds Gets 303 Of 336 Votes

NEW YORK —(AP)—Corralling 303 of a possible 336 points, William Henry (Bucky) Walters, Jr., the prodigious pitching star of the Cincinnati Reds, today was named the most valuable player in the National league.

His selection, more or less expected, was made by a committee of the Baseball Writers' Association of America and entitled him to a trophy offered by the Sporting News.

The 29-year-old righthander, whose talent for years was buried under a bushel basket while he masqueraded as an infielder, led both major leagues in victories with 27 during the regular campaign and was instrumental in lifting the Reds to a pennant in his first full season with the club.

He appeared in 39 games, starting and finishing 31 of them and losing only 11.

The selection of Walters on 13 first place nominations, five seconds and a fifth among the 24 writers in eight National league cities participating kept the award in the Cincinnati family circle. Last year Big Ernle (Schnozzle) Lombardi, Walters' battery mate and then leading pitcher of the league, was named.

Second place this year went to Johnny Mize, the St. Louis Cardinals' slugging first baseman who won the hitting championship. He received 176 points, including one first place nomination.

Four points behind him was Paul Derringer, Cincinnati's strong-armed veteran who pitched the Reds to 25 victories and lost but seven during the red-hot senior circuit race. He received two votes for first place but missed second place ranking in shuffling of secondary votes, which ran his total to 174.

Another Cincinnati hero, Frank (Buck) McCormick, the durable first baseman who led the league in runs batted in, rated 159 points and fourth place.

The only other player to get more than 100 votes was Pitcher Curt Davis, the workhorse of the St. Louis Cardinals, who was given 106, although no first place consideration. The one other star given a first place ballot was James Robinson (Jimmy) Brown, the Cards' classy infielder, whose total went to 98.

Apolskis Isn't Lost to Hilltop

Should be Able to Play Saturday; Goodyear Rejoins Squad

Milwaukee —(AP)—Marquette's football stock was several points higher today because of favorable reports on injured players, including Ray Apolskis, ace center.

Apolskis, who has a broken bone in one hand, may be able to play next Saturday against Southern Methodist at Dallas despite the injury last week aggravated the injury last week against Michigan State.

Johnny Goodyear, sophomore halfback, reported for yesterday's light drill in full uniform after an enforced vacation, also with a broken hand. Chuck Pfeiffer, regular left tackle, left behind on the trek to East Lansing, Mich., because of injuries, will be in the squad for Dallas and is figured to help Dick Brye fill that position.

Freddie Rice, who started the Wisconsin game at full back, got a second look in yesterday's scrimmage among the reserves by making several sizable gains through the line. Walter Leis, a halfback, also came in for renewed attention with long runs.

Milwaukee—Dick Brye, Marquette's university's flyre sophomore tackle who came through with flying colors in his first varsity start against Michigan State, was mighty glad the Hilltoppers won that game, but he'll never get over the nicker he lost during the battle. With the score tied in the fourth quarter, 14-14, he bet his opponent, Les Bruckner, Spartan tackle, Marquette would score a touchdown. Instead, the Hilltoppers won on a free placekick. Bruckner was Johnny-on-the-spot at the shower room later to collect.

Yale, Army Officials Cut Prices for Saturday's Tilt

NEW HAVEN, CONN. —(AP)—Yale and Army athletic officials broke a precedent today by making their football contest here next Saturday a "two-price" event. The action "opened" the encounter to the general public and (incidentally) may fill the bowl, something this battle hasn't done since the pre-depression era.

Once one of the glamour games of the season, a contest in which it was necessary to write to your congressman months before the date of the meeting if you wanted to get a seat at $3.30, interest in the battle dwindled to the extent that a 40,000 gate has been considered tops in recent years.

Even this left some 30,000 empty

SEEKS REVENGE

It forced him to give up the fight and it went against him as a technical K.O. He'd like to erase the blot.

LAST WEEK'S SCORES
Lawrence 18, Carleton 8.
Cornell 33, Beloit 7.
Coe 7, Monmouth 7.
Ripon 6, Carroll 6.
Knox 12, Lake Forest 6.
Grinnell 7, Simpson 6.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES
Ripon at Beloit (night).
Cornell at Coe.
Lawrence at Monmouth
Stanley at Carleton.
Grinnell at Colorado C.
Millikin at Knox.

When Lawrence upset Carleton last week to win its first homecoming game in 13 years and Coe and Monmouth tied at seven each, it threw the Midwest Conference race into a muddle and left only Carroll and Knox with an unblemished record. None of the nine teams are out of title consideration although Beloit, with two tough losses, will need help from others to remain in the running. The Gold has had a heavy early schedule, which included a win over Chicago but has lost the services of its veteran back, Virgil.

Cornell, by virtue of a 33 to 6 victory over Beloit, in its opening league game, stamped itself as present favorite along with Knox, but one duck doesn't make a fall, and there will be open season on both. Ripon showed strength in a tie game with Carroll and Knox thumped Lake Forest 12 to 6 in another non-conference game, Grinnell defeated Simpson, 7 to 0.

Intra-state rivalries are up for this week as Ripon travels to Beloit for a night game on Friday and Cornell meets Coe at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Lawrence gets no rest nor consolation in their scheduled appearance at Monmouth although the Vikings lost no confidence in beating Carleton. In outside games Carleton plays host to Bradley, Grinnell travels to Colorado college and Knox entertains Millikin.

Appleton High Returns to Grid Wars This Week

Meets Fond du Lac Here Saturday; East Plays Ships Friday

NEXT FRIDAY'S GAMES
Manitowoc at Green Bay East.
Green Bay West at Oshkosh.
Sheboygan North at Central.

NEXT SATURDAY'S GAME
Fond du Lac at Appleton.

APPLETON High school gridder, idle last Saturday while their bumps and bruises healed, will return to the Fox River Valley conference football wars here Saturday afternoon with Fond du Lac as the opponent.

Defeated in two starts and tied in a third, Appleton will embark this week on a campaign designed to give it its first conference win—or wins. The Terrors opened the season as a green ball team, one that had a tremendous amount of information to absorb and as the weeks have passed there has been marked improvement. Injuries cut down some of the better performers and all in all made for a bad situation.

But the squad's morale remained high all this time and now as the Terrors prepare to oppose Fond du Lac they've gained a lot of confidence, no small amount of poise and there's a possibility things will happen. If Coaches Myron Seims and John Mack can gather together their best talent for Saturday's exhibition they'll probably produce a ball club that will resemble the first one only in the suits the boys are wearing.

East Versus Ships
The week's grid card will see three conference games Friday night and one Saturday. The Green Bay East-Manitowoc game at East's stadium will be the week's highlight because Manitowoc is tough and may end East's victory streak.

If it does, Manitowoc is almost certain to finish the season the champion. The other big game will have Green Bay West at Oshkosh where Red Martin's crowd will attempt to oust West from the undefeated class—and may. Sheboygan at Central is the other game and no one cares but the Sheboygan folks.

Conference scoring figures were little changed by last week's two battles. East lost a little of its defensive prestige at Fond du Lac and now has had 19 points scored against it. However, the Red Devils have the best offensive mark with 68 points. Manitowoc's defensive record is best with 6 points while West follows with 7.

There was no change in the leading individual scores. Luker of Oshkosh still leads with 27 points he scored in the first conference game. Powers, West, and Liebman and Mancheski, East, trail him by three points for second honors.

The individual records:

	Td	Pat	Tp
Luker, Oshkosh	4	3	27
Powers, West	4	0	24
Liebman, East	4	0	24
Mancheski, East	4	0	24

BADGER DUCK HUNTING

By Euell Patterson

WHILE those in the middle west hear more about the duck hunting along the valley of the Mississippi and the Illinois rivers than about anywhere else, Wisconsin has much to offer for the followers of the great autumn shooting pastime.

Many of the lakes in the Badger state have excellent beds of wild rice which are the ideal feeding grounds for ducks in flight toward the southland and many of the lakes and rivers also have many other forms of food which tempt and tempt the duck epicures.

The overflows around the Chippewa river and other dammed streams are well liked by the ducks because of their isolation from civilization. They also frequently make stop-overs on such lakes as Vieux Desert, the Cisco Chain of lakes, Pelican lake, Big Trout and many others where there is an expanse of water for protection so that an approaching foe can be spotted at considerable distance.

Small flight frequent the Wisconsin river stretches and many of the haymeadow creeks which abound in the state. Flights of five thousand or more ducks are a common sight each fall in spite of the fact that the major movement is generally down the Mississippi.

Wisconsin's lakes are often of the irregular shore line type with many points and promontories that make ideal spots for locating a blind. The blind in such spots should be made to stimulate the surrounding growth, whether it be brush, reeds, wild rice or rushes of any sort. Wisconsin duck visitors are

YOUNGSTERS TAKE THEIR FOOTBALL WHERE THEY FIND IT

There's no directed football for Appleton youngsters so the kids take it where they find it. And if you happen around the Roosevelt school playgrounds almost any afternoon you'll find from 40 to 60 youngsters learning how to play football much in the manner of the two teams above. The boys have been organized into groups by "Sonny" Filz, former Appleton High school gridder, and start the afternoon by taking exercises and then lining up for a little scrimmage and instruction. Filz is shown on the right above with Roland Tracy, who helps him, on the left. The lads have consent of parents to play with the teams or they sit sadly on the sidelines and watch. (Post-Crescent Photo)

ANOTHER BAD, very bad week for guessers of football scores is over but there always are a few lads who pick a correct count here or there and gather the honors. If the gridgers would get down to playing games with common scores we might have trouble with too many winners. But when they play games like Lawrence's 18 to 8 win over Carleton, or Harvard's big victory over Chicago it's tough on the guessers.

Returns this week were exceptionally good again with some of the outside districts showing a lot of interest.

Clifford Rosera, 1525 W. Second street, wins a ticket to the Appleton-Fond du Lac game Saturday because he picked two correct scores and missed another by a point. He picked New London over West DePere, 6 to 0, Kimberly over Manawa, 13 to 0, and missed on Manitowoc over Oshkosh by a point. His closest competitor had one correct score and one missed by a point.

Only a few persons picked Lawrence to beat Carleton but Joyce Palmer, 1052 E. Vine street, deserves mention because she missed the score by a single point. She picked it as 18 to 7 for Lawrence.

Other winners follow:

Menasha: Gordon Meier, 201 Elm street, who picked Green Bay East over Fond du Lac, 21 to 13, and Kimberly over Manawa, 13 to 0.

Clintonville: Willard Wolf again with the Kimberly-Manawa score.

Kimberly: Joe Van Lieshout, with the Omro-Marion score and a miss by a point on the Carroll-Ripon tie. And here's a note to Bud Harley, Kimberly, who is in St. Elizabeth hospital. You'll get a ticket to a Kimberly basketball game when you can use it.

Kaukauna: Donald Brown, 332 Taylor street, who crashed through with New London over West DePere and the Ripon-Carroll tie. He also missed the Minnesota-Purdue tie by a point.

Neenah: Paul Longhurst, Clark street, who picked the Minnesota-Purdue tie and had 13 winning teams to break a tie with Bill Lawson. The latter picked Kimberly over Manawa but had only 11 winning teams.

Little Chute: Donnie Heesacker, who picked Kimberly over Manawa and Don Peeters who dittoed. We'll have to give each a ticket because we couldn't break the tie in any way, shape or manner.

New London: Red Watkins, Box 656, who picked Indiana over Wisconsin and missed the Lawrence-Carleton score by a point, 18 to 7.

And here's next week's games:

ZORIC CLEANERS forged into a commanding lead in the American division of the Knights of Columbus league with a 3-game win over Schmidt Clothiers during matches at Elks alleys last night. The Cleaners were knotted with Pitz and Treiber for first place but the latter dropped three games to Fountain Lumbers.

Individual honors for the evening went to A. Faas and A. Umuth with 206 games, the former hitting a 533 series. Top team totals were registered by Zoric Cleaners with a 925 game and Peoples Laundry with a 2,590 series.

G. Schomisch paced Zoric kegglers with a 493 series while A. Sauter topped the losers with a 532 triple. E. Mollen showed a 479 series to top Soo Line in a 3-game victory over Summich Grocers. Tops for the losers was Recker with a 495 count.

E. Klingert paved the way for Fountain Lumbers with a 203 game and 523 series while Mortell were high for Pitz and Treiber with a 487 total.

Peoples Laundry took two from Schaefer Dairy with Umuth and Faas doing the heavy work. C. Williamson mainstay the losers with a 202 game and 494 series.

Two games went to Wisconsin Telephone company in a match with Rechner Cleaners. L. Schiller paced the victors with a 498 series while L. Balliet had a 495 for the losers.

Appleton Bowlers Lose at Fond du Lac

With W. Keip smashing games of 278 and 237 for a 707 series, West Side Wild Cats of Fond du Lac defeated Schuesser Weatherstrips of Appleton by a count of 3,245 to 3,147 at Arcade alleys in Fond du Lac Sunday afternoon. Six men performed with each team. E. Schuesser added a 220 game and L. Faris a 202 for the winners.

Pacing the Appleton sextet was R. Hauert with a 536 series and 218 game. R. Schmidt with 230 and E. Sternard with 201.

FRIDAY'S GAMES
Kimberly at Pulaski
Manawa at Omro (Homecoming)

KIMBERLY — Coach Ray Hamann's gridders have the toughest game of their schedule this week Friday when they journey to Pulaski to battle Coach Lucy Albers' gridders. Kimberly needs a win over the Poles in order to hold the top berth. Pulaski has shown great form in recent weeks, defeating their opponents by large scores.

In Litwinski, Kurovski and Staszak the Poles have a fast charging backfield that is hard to stop. Staszak, is the "Whizzer White" of the Poles with a snaky motion in breaking away from tacklers.

The Papermakers were badly outplayed during the first half of last week's game with Manawa and were fortunate in not being scored upon at least twice. The blocking was ragged and the tackling sluggish. Time upon time the ends were decoyed out of position by the speedy backs of the Wolves.

Hietpas Scores

Bobby Hietpas broke the Papermaker tension in the third quarter with a brilliant 65 yard end run to score. Hietpas practically had to make his own interference before getting into the clear to score. Being in the lead, helped the Papermakers to settle down to business for the remainder of the game.

The Kimberly team has shown their coach that they want a victory over Pulaski by a return to form in practice.

In the other league game Manawa will travel to Omro where the latter will have its homecoming. Omro defeated Marion last week by a 13 to 6 count. The winners were leading 7 to 0 at the quarter while at the half the score was tied 7 all. The second half was a seesaw with Omro recovering a Marion fumble after two complete passes. Win gartner went through tackle for a touchdown. He was stopped on try through center for the extra point.

Wes Ramey Winner Over Wishy Jones

Milwaukee —(AP)— Wes Ramey, veteran lightweight of Grand Rapids, Mich., won the decision in a slow-ten round fight last night with Wishy Jones of Louisville. Ramey weighed 135, Jones 137.

In the third fight between the two, both went to the canvas several times on combinations of slipping and pushing. Each had won one previous bout.

Other results:
Ernie Valente, West Allis, 174, knocked out Ted Morrison, St. Paul, 169 1/2 (2).

Frankie Gaudes, Milwaukee, 129, knocked out Myles Martinez, St. Paul, 132 1/2 (4).

Isaiah Lewis, Milwaukee, 157, beat Curley Martin, Minneapolis, 149 (4).

Joey Spiegel, Milwaukee, 141, won from Jack Penneau, Cudahy, 145 1/2 (4).

Carl Schumaker, Racine, 154, and George Feltes, Milwaukee, 149, Milwaukee, drew (4).

Named Acting Captain For Saturday's Game With Wildcats

Hoosiers Reach Crossroads in Season's Grind

Battle Illinois Saturday; Team Has Improved Each Week

BY TOM SILER
CHICAGO—(AP)—Col. Alvin Nugent McMinn's Indiana team will reach the crossroads of its football season Saturday against the University of Illinois. The Hoosiers, only team in the Big Ten which has never won the title or even tied for it, can lose their remaining five games and come out with a record as good as in 1938.

McMinn's club has been operating like an elevator. They tied Nebraska in the opener, lost to Iowa next and then defeated Wisconsin, but in so doing ran up 50 points, more than twice as many as the 1938 team scored in winning one and tying one in an eight-game slate.

Off their showing so far Indiana should be a definite favorite against the Illini Saturday, but the record book shows they never have whipped Bob Zuppke's boys in Champaign and have defeated them only once in their past 13 games. A victory this week would give Indiana hope for a good season, a defeat would indicate they are in for another dismal year.

Illinois, just back from a 26-0 defeat at the hands of Southern California on the west coast, will be looking for their first victory and first touchdown against the Hoosiers. The Illini and Bradley played an 0-0 tie in their season opener.

Wolves To Use Reserves
Michigan's reserves will probably get several opportunities to play in the next three weeks as the powerful Wolverines take on Chicago, Yale and Illinois in succession. None is rated more than an outside chance to win from Fritz Crisler's machine. The Wolves got a complete rest Monday following their 27-7 triumph over Iowa's rejuvenated outfit.

Chicago, facing an almost hopeless task against the Wolves in Chicago Saturday, plan to spend most of the week drilling on defensive measures.

Coach Francis Schmidt of Ohio State lost no time yesterday getting his Bucks back into uniform to begin drilling for their pivotal clash with Minnesota Saturday.

All the players escaped injury in the Northwestern game. . . . Several Minnesotans came out of the 13-13 tie with Purdue with severe bruises but are expected to be ready for Ohio State.

Coach Harry Stuhldreher has appointed Jack Murray, senior center, Wisconsin's captain for the Northwestern game this week.

Neither of these teams can afford to lose as both already have dropped a conference game and one more would virtually put them out of the title running.

A sad disappointment so far, the Wildcats are going back to fundamentals in an effort to get some effective blocking and tackling.

Mal Elward's Purdue reserves went through a tough scrimmage yesterday while the varsity rested from the Minnesota battle.

The Boilermakers go against Michigan State Saturday. . . . Iowa, idle this week, held only a light workout before beginning serious work for the Wisconsin game two weeks hence.

Pro Football Loop

Sets Scoring Pace

NEW YORK—(AP)—It's the scoring the football fans want, they are getting it in large doses from teams of the National Professional league. So far the money players have averaged five points per game higher than last year's record scoring.

Washington, by scoring 44 points against Pittsburgh on Sunday, became the first team in league history to tally over 40 points in two consecutive years. They had scored 41 against Brooklyn the previous week.

The Chicago Bears also tallied 44 points against the Chicago Cardinals, and for the third time this season gained over 400 yards. This ties a record set by Detroit in 1936. The Bears have gained 1841 yards, Washington 1354 and Green Bay 1221.

Cleveland has completed the season with 32 out of 35, but Washington has the highest average of completions with 32 out of 53. New York is the best defensive club in the league, having allowed opponents only 20 points, and is tied with Detroit in allowing rivals a total gain of only 676 yards.

12 Players Report for Oshkosh All-Star Drill

Oshkosh—(AP)—Twelve players reported to Manager Lon Darling last night for the season's first practice session of the Oshkosh All-Stars of the National Basketball league.

The All-Stars won the league's western division championship the last two years.

Among those reporting were the veterans, LeRoy Edwards, center, who will become a forward this year; Ray Adams, forward; and Ed Mullen and Herman Wittasek, guards.

Mullen will coach as well as play, assisting Coach George Hotchkiss.

New men reporting were Willard Pederson, Dean Mealy, Fred Nimz, and Virgil Batterman, centers; Charles Shipp, guard; and Oscar Olson, Ossie Swinehart and Bernard Knobloch, forwards.

LeRoy Mueller, forward, is to report today.

DODGERS GET FRANCIS

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Brooklyn Football Dodgers announced they had obtained Sam Francis, former Nebraska fullback, from the Pittsburgh Pirates in exchange for Boyd Brumbaugh, former Duquesne star, and cash.

Francis, a 200-pound powerhouse, was to report to the Brooklyn training camp today.

IRON BARS DO NOT A PRISON—

Seattle—Coach Jimmy Phelan of the University of Washington pointed to a big-lettered poster on the wall of his office.

"Read what that poster says," he instructed 202-pound Glen Conley, a sophomore tackle prospect from Cheney, Wash.

Conley admitted the war-scare-sized letters were a blur to him and Phelan was dumbfounded.

Conley had been playing tackle during spring practice and couldn't even see plainly across the line of scrimmage. So Phelan outfitted the blond, 19-year-old giant with a special pair of glasses and gave him one of those birdcage helmets to protect the specs.

"Can you imagine that?" Phelan recounted. "He was a pretty fair tackle before when he couldn't even see, but now that he CAN see, he's downright sensational!"

Pastor at Brillion

Honored at Church

By Ladies Aid Group

Brillion—Members of the Ladies Aid Society of the Trinity Lutheran church surprised the Rev. and Mrs. M. F. Sauer at the church parlors on Sunday in honor of the former's seventieth birthday anniversary.

The Rev. Mr. Sauer has served the Trinity Lutheran church as pastor for 39 years. A 6 o'clock dinner was served in the church dining room to about 160 guests including the members of the board of trustees and the choir and their families, the Rev. Wilmer Valesky of Greenleaf and Mrs. Mary Tatum of Milwaukee.

Aviation School Is Being Sought

Clintonville May be One Of Half Dozen Cities To Get Course

Clintonville—Through the cooperation of city officials and the local chapter of the National Aeronautical association, Clintonville may receive an aviation training school, one of the six to ten such schools to be established in Wisconsin.

This branch of study is a part of the national youth administration and is under the supervision of the federal government. The training course will be offered only in cities having municipal airports. Under the N. Y. A. setup, the government furnishes one plane, one fuselage, three types of motors in stands, the necessary tools and an instructor.

Boys between the ages of 18 and 21 will be eligible to receive the basic ground instructions in aviation. The requirements for entrance are a high school education and physical fitness. After completing the preliminary course, the students will be eligible to take flying instructions under government supervision.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Berglund of Lakewood were weekend guests at the home of the latter's brother Harry Isaacson.

Mrs. Anna Koepke, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Peschke and son Robert of Wrightstown were visitors Sunday at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. Ida Kroll.

Hortonville Firemen Put Out Chimney Fire At Segal Residence
Hortonville—The Hortonville fire company was called to the home of Charles Segal, W. Main street, at 8:30 Sunday morning to extinguish a bad chimney fire. No other damage resulted.

Mrs. A. Haller is spending a few days at the home of her son Marvin Haller and family at Oshkosh.

Mr. and Mrs. William Krause entertained Thursday evening in honor of the thirty-fourth wedding anniversary of their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Archer, Portland, Ore. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Purson, Antigo; Mr. and Mrs. William Schmidt, Menasha; and Miss Marie Rule, Appleton.

Mr. Archer is an uncle of Mr. Krause and has not visited here for 22 years.

Frank Schneider, Greenville, while cutting bushes around his home Sunday, cut the back of his right hand at the base of the middle finger. The wound was treated at the office of a Hortonville physician.

Rosary and benediction with the Blessed Sacrament will be held at 7:30 Friday evening at St. Peter and Paul Catholic church.

Mrs. Alvin Dobbertine entertained the Matinee Bridge club at her home Friday afternoon. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Wilbur Diestler first, Mrs. D. A. Matheson and Mrs. Fred Stratton, carrying prize.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Matheson, Mrs. Henry Meffert and Mrs. Esther Hertel and daughter Carolyn motored to Madison Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Matheson visited Mr. Matheson's sister, who is a patient at a hospital in that city.

Strong Sentiment for Early Conclusion of Special Term
Washington—(AP)—Sentiment was strong in the senate today for winding up the special session as soon as action has been completed on neutrality legislation.

An Associated Press survey showed 46 senators contending that it would be unnecessary for congress to remain in session until the regular meeting on Jan. 3.

Only 24 senators said they believed congress should remain in Washington "for the duration of the emergency," "as long as the war lasts," or until the regular session convenes. Twenty-one said that they were undecided, declined to express their views, or could not be reached for comment.

Three other senators—Nye (R-N.D.), Danaher (R-Conn.) and McCarran (D-Nev.)—argued that another special session would be necessary if the arms embargo were repealed. Senator Downey (D-Calif.), expressed a similar opinion by saying that it would be "entirely safe for congress to go home" if the administration's neutrality bill were beaten.

Senator Andrews (D-Fla.), however, took the position that enactment of the embargo repeal bill would make it unnecessary for congress to remain in session.

Senators who expressed a preference for a recess between sessions included: Barkley (D-Ky.), Brown (D-Mich.), Gillette (D-Iowa), Herring (D-Iowa), Lucas (D-Ill.), Minton (D-Ind.) and Van Nuys (D-Ind.).

Members who advocated a continuous session included: Clark (D-Mo.), LaFollette (P-Wis.), Lundeen (F.L.-Minn.), Slatery (D-Ill.), Taft (R-Ohio), and Wiley (R-Wis.).

Among senators who could not be reached for comment or took no definite position were: Chandler (D-Ky.), Donahoe (D-Ohio), Shipstead (F.L.-Minn.), and Truman (D-Mo.).

Only Sensible to Make U. S. Vessels Stay Out of Danger

Washington—The maritime commission has joined the shipping lobby in fighting the restrictions in the pending neutrality bill, restrictions intended to keep American vessels out of danger zones.

Much is being made of the maritime commission's statement that the neutrality bill as it stands would take 130 American ships off their present trade routes. About 170 would be left free to operate.

Some 800,000 tons of shipping would be taken off, the maritime commission says, and 1,000,000 tons could continue to operate.

But when you break down the figures it is clear that if the maritime commission opposes taking this tonnage off of the existing routes, then it favors allowing American ships to operate freely in European waters. For the great bulk of the tonnage affected by the danger areas around Europe.

Taking the list of 1,390 ships that would be affected, the maritime commission's figures show that 83 operate in European ports, including the United Kingdom and Ireland and the Baltic ports—all highly dangerous waters. That's about two-thirds of the shipping that would be affected.

Raymond Clapper If we are going to insist that this shipping continue, then we might as well drop our guards completely, pretend there are no submarines sinking neutral shipping in the Baltic and the North sea, and let our ships go wherever a risky dollar lures them.

Nineteen more ships use the Mediterranean route, crossing the North Atlantic. Four use the Atlantic route to Canada—and submarines have been reported in that area. Sixteen use the North Atlantic route to make African ports.

Just two ships, a total of 36,600 tons, are listed as in the Australian trade. Well, we can let them go ahead with business as usual. There isn't much risk, if any, there.

Consideration Should Be Seen in Proper Size
The commission also makes an important point of the economic cost of taking these ships off of their present dangerous runs. Gross revenues received from freight, passengers and mail by the steamship lines which would be affected amounted to $72,000,000 in 1938. That is just about the cost of one battleship! In fact, the navy department estimates the cost of a 45,000-ton battleship at $80,000,000.

It is argued that half of this money goes out in the United States for repairs, supplies, repairs, insurance premiums and the like—$35,500,000 in 1938, with perhaps another $10,000,000 spent on shore, at terminals, for brokers, stevedores, and such. Say the shipping operators spend $50,000,000 a year in the United States. That helps provide mass purchasing power, but it is a very small mass. In terms of relief and pump-priming, $50,000,000 is small change that you scarcely bother to pick up. Some 9,000 seamen are employed on the ships that would go out of service—there is scarcely a major city in the country that wouldn't be glad to report that it had only 9,000 unemployed. And who is certain that those ships would have to tie up?

I don't mean that these considerations are unimportant—but, they ought to be seen in their proper size. The financial loss, the loss in employment and in services and trade, is infinitesimal compared either with our existing unemployment problem or with the cost of war. The government could better subsidize the loss than incur the risk.

Real Risk Is Seen, Its Better to Avoid It
We can well be reluctant to abandon regular shipping services. To us a merchant marine is a vital national necessity. But there is no reason to make it a sacred cow. If we see that to send American ships into a particular area is to expose them to real risk—such as hangs over the prow of any ship in the Baltic, for instance, then the first consideration is to keep them out.

It is all very well to say, "Let them travel as their own risk." You can make the shipping companies sign waivers until they all have writers' cramp. The government can warn them every morning before breakfast that it will not be responsible if one of them is ripped and sent to the bottom by a German torpedo. But let one of them go down and pledges or no pledges, you would have a nation-wide cry to defend the American flag. No matter how many times we told the ships to go out at their own risk, if they fly the American flag we are going to protect them, and get tough if anything happens to them. That being the case, the only sensible thing to do is to see that they stay reasonably clear of danger.

Christening Party Is Held at Clintonville
Clintonville—Mr. and Mrs. Leo Polzin, 92 Anne street, entertained about thirty relatives and friends at dinner and supper Sunday in honor of the baptism of their infant daughter, Patricia Kay. The service was performed Sunday morning in Salem Evangelical church by the Rev. E. W. Marks, the sponsors being Miss Ruth Adams of Shawano, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Pernot of Clintonville. Out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Sorenson and daughter, Leone, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Adams and family of Shawano; Miss Charles Sorenson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lane, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Clement and family of Milwaukee.

Miss Luella McLeod, who teaches at Kimberly, spent the weekend here with her sister, Mrs. Norman Hanson and family.

Mrs. H. B. Dodge, president of the W.C.T.U. of this city, with Mrs. E. W. Marks and Mrs. R. W. Moss-holder, local delegates, went to Janesville Monday, where they are attending the state convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union being held Oct. 17, 18 and 19. They went by way of Waupaca, where they were joined by Mrs. Jessie Olsson, county president, and Miss Julia Hutchinson, editor of the Motor, official publication of the W.C.T.U.

The Clintonville Woman's club is sponsoring an art exhibit at the high school, which will be open to the public Wednesday, Oct. 18, from 4 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7 to 9 o'clock in the evening.

"PREHISTORIC" FISH

Weren't there any people living when dinosaurs were on the earth?

That question was asked the other day when I was speaking to boys and girls in a school classroom. My answer was that not a single man, woman or child was alive when the giant dinosaurs roamed the earth.

Head of ancient fish caught off African coast.

about this planet. The dinosaurs were "masters of the world" for a long, long time. We know about them only because of imprints which they left in mud, and because of their skeletons.

The mud hardened into rock, and that is why we are able to see the imprints today. Most of the skeletons wasted away and "turned into dust," but here and there a dinosaur died in a muddy place where its bones turned into "fossils."

It is one of the marvels of science for us to be able to know about animals which "died out" before the human race appeared on earth. We may wonder whether a few dinosaurs may still live in a distant part of the earth, but that is not at all likely. Almost every part of every continent has been explored.

The story of the ocean is not quite the same. The deep salt water may be the home of many kinds of animals not yet listed in books.

That was brought out clearly by an event several months ago. A strange fish was caught in a net hauled up off the coast of southern Africa. This fish was found to belong to a family of "prehistoric" fish, the members of which had a scientific name meaning "Hollow Spines."

As far as is known, no such fish even was caught before. Yet a number of skeletons of its ancestors had been studied by scientists. The scientists estimated that some of the skeletons were from 200,000,000 to 250,000,000 years old. They believed that the last members of the race had died out 80,000,000 years ago.

Yet the fishermen brought up this "Hollow Spine" fish was alive, and stayed alive for three hours after it was captured. It weighed 127 pounds and was five feet long. The scales had a steel-blue color, and the large eyes were blue.

From the skeletons which had been found, experts had figured how such fish must have looked when alive. The fish taken in a net agreed in most points with models which the experts had prepared.

Fish of this type lived in the oceans at the same time the dinosaurs were alive. Scientists hope that more examples of this fish family will be discovered later.

'Adolescence' Topic of Chilton Woman's Club

Chilton—"Adolescence" was the topic discussed at the second meeting of the Chilton Woman's club at the city hall Monday afternoon by Dr. Paul Grosshuesch of Mission House college. Stressing the importance of the "psychology of life" and the relationship of the parents and their children, the speaker brought out the importance of responsibility toward their children, using as an interesting example the fasting of the African father at the birth of a child.

The girls' sextet of the high school glee club consisting of Marjorie Miller, Margaret Jean King, Betty Lou Maples, Shirley Westfahl, Doris Aebischer and Alice Ploekelmann accompanied by Ruth Hertel sang two songs.

The hostesses for the meeting were Miss Belle Broderick and Mrs. Arno Schaefer.

Past Presidents of Legion Auxiliary to Name Officers

New London—Election of officers is scheduled for the meeting of the past presidents of the American Legion auxiliary Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Oscar Nemschoff, 413 V. Warren street. Lunch-eon will be followed by cards. Mrs. James Graham, recently installed president, will be admitted as a new member of the group.

Plans for a dessert luncheon and card party were made at a special meeting of Circle 1 of the Congregational church last night at the home of Mrs. Beatrice Monsted, 405 Wayne street. The affair will be held Oct. 27 at the Monsted residence with Mrs. Milo DeGroff as general chairman.

The first in the series of schafskop tournaments sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary will be held at 8 o'clock Thursday evening at the VFW clubrooms. The tournaments will run for seven weeks.

Hostesses for Thursday night will be Mrs. M. F. Abraham, Mrs. Theresa Abraham, Mrs. George Beattie and Mrs. Len Borchardt.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Abraham this past week were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Abraham and son, David, Neenah, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weltzien, Appleton. The Abrahams were here on Sunday and the Weltziens on Sunday.

Steig Tells Rotarians About Western Journey

Clintonville—Max Steig, cashier of the Dairyman's State bank of this city, talked to his fellow Rotarians Monday noon on his recent trip through the west. He left here Sept. 21 for Seattle, Wash., where he attended the annual convention of the American Bankers' association. Mr. Steig is vice president of the Wisconsin Bankers' association this year. From Seattle the Wisconsin delegation went to California, where they attended the Golden Gate Exposition and visited other points of interest. They returned home over the southern route after an absence of nearly three weeks.

The birthday anniversaries of Mr. Steig and Francis M. Higgins were observed at the club meeting.

Mrs. George Laahs was hostess to her bridge club Monday afternoon, when two tables of contract were in play. Prizes were won by Mrs. Clarence Barker, Mrs. Ross Roach and Mrs. Carl Rosnow. The club will be entertained in two weeks by Mrs. Harry Lang.

New London Drills For Kaukauna '11'

Red and White Risks Undeclared Record Saturday Afternoon

New London—Following their victory over West De Pere last Friday, New London High school gridders are drilling this week for Kaukauna in one of their toughest conference battles Saturday afternoon at Kaukauna. Coach Gregg Charlesworth gave the regulars a lay-off Monday night and spent extra time on the second string line to provide specialties between acts.

Costumes for the operetta were made by the sewing classes in the home economics department directed by Miss Karen Fosdal. Furniture to be used in the play was made in the manual training classes under the direction of Hugh Alberts.

The "B" squad, which last week scrimmaged the Marion High school regulars, will have a return practice session with them some evening this week, according to Harold Isaacson, assistant football coach.

Attend Fall Meeting Of Valley Foresters

Bear Creek—The fall meeting of the Fox River Valley Catholic Order of Foresters was held at Fond du Lac Sunday. Ferdinand Reitzner, Robert Neely, route 1, Thomas Gough and Edward Hurley of this village attended the meeting.

Miss Margaret Dixon, English teacher at Bear Creek High school, visited over the weekend with relatives at Duluth, Minn.

Mrs. Mary McEnroe and Miss Irene McEnroe of Chicago were weekend visitors at the home of Dr. and Mrs. L. F. Morneau.

Mrs. D. D. Bechard was surprised by a number of friends at her home Friday evening in honor of her birthday. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Zemple, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Suprise, Mr. and Mrs. Carl-

High School Will Present Operetta

Student Players to Appear in 2-Act Production Friday Evening

Shiocton—An operetta, "The Sunbonnet Girl," will be presented at the high school gymnasium at 8:15 Friday evening by the Shiocton High school Players. The operetta, a 2-act comedy by Morgan and Johnson, is under the direction of Miss Dorothy Grehn and Miss Mary Agnes Hurd.

The high school orchestra will give a short concert before the play and an instrumental trio will provide specialties between acts.

Costumes for the operetta were made by the sewing classes in the home economics department directed by Miss Karen Fosdal. Furniture to be used in the play was made in the manual training classes under the direction of Hugh Alberts.
